HARRIS DENIES ATWOOD HAD CAUSE FOR JEALOUSY

EXPECT BREMEN HERE

Customs Boat and Police Ship Patrol the Harbor in Order to Give the Submarine Protection

As a result of repeated rumors that the German merchant submarine Bremen would come into Boston Harbor today, the harbor authorities kept a watch for the vessel's arrival.

The customs boat Dreamer patrolled the harbor entrance at the three-mile limit; while the police boat Guardian patrolled the police harbor lines, ready to meet and protect the Bremen should she arrive.

Their patrol kept up all night and continued this morning.

The rumor that the Bremen would come into Boston Harbor today came from New York, and had it that the U-boat would slip into Massachusetts waters while the allied warships were guarding the Virginia Capes.

It was believed here that the Deutschland was delaying her arrival in order to hold the warships there till the Bremen should arrive.

PLANS UP WELCOME.

Ever since the Deutschland ended her maiden voyage across the Atlantic it has been known that the Bremen, owned and operated by the same company as owns the Deutschland, was on her way to America. Great secrecy has been attached to the port of her destination and she has been reported approaching several different Atlantic ports.

Extraordinary measures are being taken to welcome the submarine. The precautions will make it impossible

Deutschland Files Application for Necessary Papers; Mystery Surrounds Delay for Sea Dash

By International News Service.

Baltimore, Md., July 22.—Application for clearance papers for the German merchant submarine Deutschland was made at the custom house here at 11:55 a. m. today, just as the custom house was closing for the day, it was learned this afternoon. The Deutschland may be cleared after business hours, custom house officials say.

It is plain that some mysterious setback, some difficulty known only to Captain Paul Koenig and to the officials of the Eastern Forwarding Company, agents of the Deutschland, has been encountered to prevent the sailing of the merchant submarine, which undoubtedly was scheduled for several days ago.

There is nothing wrong with the boat or its mechanism. The cargo with the exception of the reported shipment of gold for the Central Powers, is aboard, and, as the gold need not necessarily have been carried back by the Deutschland, it is not thought that insurance trouble is causing the delay. Something momentous has happened.

Shore leave to the sailors, revoked some days ago, has been granted again. Even social activities have been resumed. Palpably the Deutschland is comfortable in her berth, and may remain there indefinitely.

CONGRESSMAN REFUSED.

Congressman George Washington Edmunds of Philadelphia visited the pier and asked Captain Hinsh for permission to board the Neckar. This was refused, Captain Hinsh inviting him back on Monday, "when another submarine just like the Deutschland will be in," he explained.

There was less activity and more precautions were taken in the vicinity of the Deutschland than since she arrived on the Patapsco side of Locust Point. The usual hurly-burly of the perspiring and half naked stevedores, wheeling trucks of nickel between the warehouse and the Deutschland was conspicuously missing. The crew of the Timmine, the tug which received and convoyed the submarine up the bay, were all on board their vessel.

Falls 4 Stories in Elevator Well to Instant Death

Falling from the fourth floor to the basement when the elevator which he was about to enter started upward suddenly, Howard W. Eaton, seventy, of East Seventh street, South Boston, was killed instantly at the building on Harrison avenue extension where he has offices.

After an investigation William V. White, fifty-two, of Everett street, Somerville, who was operating the elevator, was arrested on a charge of manslaughter as a result of the accident.

According to White's story, he was about to start down, when the aged man called him. The elevator was then slightly below the floor level. In attempting to level the car, White says, he went about a yard above the floor landing.

The gate was open at the time, it is charged, and Eaton, missed his footing and rolled into the well. For a moment he clung to the threshhold of the car, but before assistance could be given, his hand had slipped off and he plunged to his death.

Tells of Plot to Sink the Olympic with 10,000 Men

Lewiston, Me., July 22.—That the Canadian government has just completed arrangements for transporting 85,000 Russian troops across Canada to Halifax for shipment to France was the assertion made here today by Michael O'Leary, a prominent official of the intercolonial Railroad Company, who is here on a visit.

The troops, according to Mr. O'Leary, will first cross Siberia and then sail for Victoria, B. C. The time of their arrival in Canada is being kept secret.

O'Leary also stated that a German bomb plot was discovered in Halifax a month ago when the steamship Olympic was about to sail for France with 10,000 Canadian troops. According to him a bomb was found on the ship just before she left. The plotters, he said, were later caught and executed by the government troops. All news of this incident, he said, has been kept secret.

BABY PLAGUE FATAL TO 39 IN NEW YORK

By International News Service.

New York, July 22.—All records for death in the epidemic of infantile paralysis were broken during the past twenty-four hours. During that period thirty-nine children, stricken with the disease, died. The figures also showed a big increase in the number of cases, there being 154, as against 81 on Friday. The deaths on Friday numbered 22.

Up to the present there have been 2,662 cases and 558 deaths, and the city physicians have abandoned hope that the disease will soon be under control. All five boroughs, with the exception of Richmond, showed an increase in the number of cases.

In Brooklyn, centre of the disease, the cases increased to forty-five. The situation is more serious than at any time previously, because of the quarantine work done in cities and towns of the States bordering on New York.

Scores of children who had been taken out of the city to escape the epidemic are now being traced down and being sent back here. In both Connecticut and New Jersey the officials are becoming more strict in their enforcement of the health laws.

Announcement was made that the National Service School camp at Rowayton-on-the-Sound, Ct., would not be opened, owing to requests made by the Connecticut and Federal authorities.

WEST END DOCTOR HELD

Dr. James E. Frothingham Arrested for Illegal Treatment of Girl as Result of Ward Case

As a result of the raid on the house of Mrs. Minnie Frothingham on Allston street, at the instigation of the Grand Jury investigating the death of Miss Margaret Ward, a week ago Wednesday, the police today arrested Dr. James E. Frothingham. Dr. Frothingham is charged with having performed an illegal operation on Miss Florence Blatchford, a twenty-year-old Peabody girl, under circumstances similar to those of the Ward case.

Dr. Frothingham was arraigned before Judge Murray in the Municipal Court this morning and held in $5,000 for hearing later. In default of bail he was remanded to the Charles street Jail.

The alleged malpractice upon Miss Blatchford occurred about January 15, 1911, the police charge.

At the time of the raid at the Allston street house in search for evidence for use in the case of Margaret Ward, the Peabody girl whose death after a similar operation occured three weeks ago, the police found instruments said to be used in performing operations. A note book purporting to belong to Dr. Frothingham, divorced husband of the woman, was found but several pages of data had been torn out.

In the house when the officers entered was James O'Connell, brother of ex-Representative O'Connell, both of whom were under arrest in connection with the case. The O'Connells are brothers of Mrs. Frothingham, who is still being sought by the police.

Officials who investigated the death of Miss Ward declared at the time that in their opinion the operation performed on her was not the work of a surgeon. Death resulted, they declared, from blood poisoning as the result of the lack of skill and negligence of the person responsible for the malpractice.

The death operation upon Miss Ward is believed by the police to have taken place in Roxbury. Whether death occurred there or as she was being taken in an automobile to the home of her brother-in-law, a Salem police officer, is not known.

In the automobile with the body, on its arrival in Salem, were William Conlin of Beaver street, Salem; ex-Representative Charles R. O'Connell, a lawyer, of Emerson street, Peabody; James O'Connell of Pleasant street, Lynn; his brother; Daniel J. Dineen of Boston street, Salem; George A. Bardwell of the U. S. S. Kearsarge, and Thomas J. Sexton of No. 42 Clement avenue, Peabody, the chauffeur.

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

Fenway Park, July 22.—The Red Sox, champions of the world, were out this afternoon to take two games if possible from the Tigers and grab first place in the American League standing.

The enforced rest yesterday didn't do either team any harm, nor did it interfere with the box office either. When the first game started at 1 o'clock, in order to permit the Tigers to catch a train, they having a Sunday game with the White Sox, the crowd numbered about 4,500.

The Red Sox at the conclusion of today's contests leave town for their Western trip.

FIRST INNING.

Tigers—Vitt singled to centre. Bush tapped in front of the plate. Vitt beating Cady's throw to second. Burns sacrificed, Gardner to Barry at first. Cobb hit to Barry, and when Gainer muffed the throw both Vitt and Bush crossed the plate, while Tyrus took two bases. Shore threw out Veach. Cobb taking third. Crawford flied to Hooper. TWO RUNS.

Red Sox—Hooper drew a pass. Barry sacrificed, Mitchell to Burns. Lewis hit in front of the plate and McKee touched him out. Duffy thinking the ball was foul, Gainer hit to Vitt, so slow that it was useless to throw it. Hooper scoring. Gainer out stealing, McKee to Young. ONE RUN.

SECOND INNING.

Tigers—Young singled to second Scott blocking the ball. He was out stealing, Cady to Scott. McKee flied to Lewis. Mitchell hit to right, Hooper taking the ball on the first bound and nearly threw the pitcher out at first. Vitt forced Mitchell, Gardner to Barry. NO RUNS.

Red Sox—Walker doubled to the bank in centre field. Gardner sacrificed, Vitt to Burns. Burns fumbled Scott's grounder. Walker scoring while Scott was safe. Cady flied to Crawford. Shore out the same way. ONE RUN.

Villa Killed in Durango Fight, Is New Report

By WALLACE E. SMITH,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

El Paso, Texas, July 22.—Persistent reports prevailed here and at Columbus, N. M., today to the effect that Francisco Villa had been killed in campaigning along the Durango line.

Because of earlier and frequent reports to the same effect, officials at Fort Bliss were inclined to discredit the report, but it is known that the information has gone from General Pershing, commanding in Mexico, to General Frederick Funston at Fort Sam Houston.

Brockton Man of 108 Is Freed on Liquor Charge

Brockton, July 22.—A case of "It's never too late to mend" came before the district court today, when Abraham Weiner, 108, of Hayward street, appeared, charged with keeping a liquor nuisance.

Weiner's case came up May 16, when he pleaded guilty and was put on his good behavior.

Today he told the judge he had completely reformed and was leading "a good, righteous life." He was discharged and congratulated.

BRITISH CABINET IN SPECIAL MEETING

By International News Service.

London, July 22.—There was a meeting of the Cabinet today to consider matters of the utmost importance. Saturday Cabinet meetings are extremely rare, being held only in times of political crises. It is believed that the Irish situation and the vote of credit, which is to be moved in Commons on Monday, were discussed.

While the Cabinet was in session the Irish party met in the Parliament buildings. John Redmond presided. This meeting lasted two hours, during which Mr. Redmond made a lengthy address. Another meeting will be held on Monday.

TOOK SUBMARINE IN SOUND FOR BREMEN

Bridgeport, Ct., July 22.—A large submarine bound eastward was sighted in Long Island Sound by the Stratford lighthouse keeper today. He immediately notified this city, thinking the German submersible Bremen had arrived, but investigation showed that the vessel was a Lake submarine, which had left Bridgeport earlier in the day.

HAIG EXPECTS WAR DECISION IN WEST

By International News Service.

Paris, July 22.—"The supreme decision of the war will take place on the western battlefield," says General Sir Douglas Haig, commander-in-chief of the British army, in a statement printed in the Matin today. The statement adds: "We must impose a worthy peace for we shall have paid the price for it."

With sixteen quarts of whiskey concealed on his person, Manuel Hurwits of Waltham was fined $75 today in the district court and given a suspended sentence on the charge of illegal sale of liquor. He was arrested by Officer Peter Tracey.

CHARGE IS FALSE, VICTIM DECLARES

Dr. Wilfred E. Harris, who was shot and nearly killed by Dr. Edward de Loreia Atwood, denies that Dr. Atwood had any cause to be jealous of him.

Dr. Atwood, after the shooting, told the police that Dr. Harris had betrayed Dr. Celia Paine Adams, whose death in her Brookline office by poison is another feature of the "Triangle tragedy."

The denial of Dr. Harris was made to his brother-in-law, Dr. H. W. Conant of No. 1039 Massachusetts avenue, as Dr. Harris lay in the City Hospital in momentary expectation of death.

Dr. Harris greeted his brother-in-law with this question: "Harry, why did the little fool (Dr. Atwood) do it?"

When Dr. Conant replied that the only thing he could see was that Atwood was jealous, the wounded man said:

"Well, what in the name of all that is good could he be jealous of me for?"

These denials were related in a statement today by Dr. Conant, the very first statement for publication by any member of Dr. Harris' family since the shooting.

Another development today was the news that, as Dr. Harris lay on an operating table in the City Hospital after the shooting, he "died" under the surgeon's hands, so far as all physical functions could be observed, but was brought back to life by artificial respiration.

EAGERLY AWAITED.

Ever since the shooting of Dr. Harris and the poisoning of Dr. Adams a statement from the Harris household has been eagerly awaited in view of the serious charge made, according to the police, by Dr. Atwood against the man he had nearly killed.

Today, the fourth day from the shooting, Dr. Conant, brother-in-law of Dr.

DRIVE OF ALLIES HALTS

Berlin, July 22.—The main blow of the Franco-British allies on the Somme front has been struck and has failed, according to a long official statement issued at main headquarters. The statement describes in detail the carefully prepared efforts of the allies and the attacks they made and makes the definite statement that the drive has crumpled.

The mighty offensive was launched with 200,000 men on a front of twenty-seven miles north and south of the Somme. At only two points did the attacking troops make progress, and there their greatest gain was less than half a mile.

The official statement also makes public for the first time the fact that "the British on Wednesday attempted a drive at Fromelles, north of La Bassee. After intense gun fire they drove forward on a front of two miles. The attack was beaten back by a Bavarian division and the British retired, leaving 2,000 dead on the field. The Germans took nearly 500 prisoners.

COUNTER OFFENSIVE STRONG.

Following the collapse of the allied smash on the Somme front the Germans during the night developed a counter offensive which is gathering force.

On both sides of the Somme, says the main headquarters statement, the enemy, as has been expected, prepared a minor blow, but failed. After the most intense artillery preparation on a front of about forty kilometers attacks were made from a point south of Fosieres to a point west of Vermandevillers. More than seventeen divisions, comprising more than 200,000 men were engaged.

The result gained by the enemy is that the first line trenches of the German division on a front of about three kilometers south of Hardecourt, was forced to retire from its front trenches to another line, about 800 metres back, and that enemy divisions succeeded in penetrating the salient of the small wood of Vaux-Chapelle.

On all the rest of the front the furious attacks broke to pieces through the unswerving loyalty displayed by our troops, with extraordinary losses by the enemy. At the present seventeen officers and 1,200 men have been captured.

BAVARIANS WIN.

An attack by the English in the region of Fromelles on Wednesday, it has been determined, was executed by two strong divisions. Our gallant Bavarians, who were attacked, counted more than 2,000 dead bodies before their lines and captured ten officers, 471 men and sixteen machine guns.

The admission that the British official statement of Thursday, which reported that one German battalion of the One Hundred and Nineteenth Regiment, consisting of 1,100 men, lost 940 men and that two other battalions of the same regiment lost more than half of their effectives, is utterly untrue.

French Report German Repulse.

By CHARLES F. BERTELLI.

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, July 22. — Renewing their assaults on the Verdun front the Germans attacked the French positions last night, but the communique issued by the War Office today states that all were repulsed.

At the same time the Germans attacked the French positions in the Vosges mountains, but met with no better success. The attackers were either beaten off by the fire of the French infantry or else their assaults broke down under the curtain fire of the French artillery.

The text of the French official communique follows:

"Between the Oise and the Aisne we dispersed a strong German reconnoitring party in the region of Moulin-Sur-Touvent.

"In the Argonne we blew up a mine at Bolante with good results. At Le Fille Morte a surprise attack by the enemy against a small post was repulsed.

"On the right bank of the Meuse (Verdun front) there was a violent bombardment in the sectors of Fleury and Fumin Wood. An enemy attack on a trench south of Damloup called checked by our fire.

"In the Vosges the Germans, after a sharp bombardment at 11 o'clock last night, attacked our positions northeast of Metzeral. He was repulsed with heavy loss.

"Yesterday our bombarding squadrons of aeroplanes made three attacks on the railway station at Metz. At Saldon 115 shells of large calibre were thrown, all striking the station buildings and the railway. It is possible to state that great damage was done.

"In the course of one expedition a German aeroplane, which pursued the squadron, was brought to earth. One of our machines, forced to land at Pannes, not returned. This morning a German aeroplane threw bombs on Belfort. These caused neither casualties nor property loss."

Italians Occupy More Mountain Peaks

By International News Service.

Rome, July 22.—Several important successes for the Italians were announced in the official report of the War Office today. The Italians won encounters in the Cis and Clamon valleys. Rolle Pass was captured. Elser peak in the Sexian valley was stormed, and the Italians also occupied the summit of the Upper Plava.

BEGIN FIGHT AT WASHINGTON AGAINST BRITISH BLACKLIST

Washington, July 22.—The State Department has taken its first decisive action against the British blacklist of American citizens. It has made representations to the British government in behalf of several firms and individuals outlawed by England.

In making these representations the State Department explained its action was entirely informal. The British government was given evidence furnished by the blacklisted exporters showing there was no legal justification whatever for including their names on the blacklist. In each case the State Department specifically reserved the principle involved, which will be taken up when formal protest is made.

HOLLAND JOINS PROTEST.

The government of Holland has approached the United States government with a suggestion for co-operative action against the mutually objectionable features of the British blacklist.

The action, to be backed by reprisals against British trade if necessary, is now understood to have been the subject of the conference between Acting Secretary of State Polk and Chevalier van Rappard, the Dutch Minister.

The British blacklist was discussed at length at the Cabinet meeting. It was decided to send a vigorous protest to Great Britain after all the facts have been officially obtained in response to an inquiry already directed to the British government.

OBJECT TO INTERFERENCE.

An indication of the form this protest will take, was given by a high administration official who said:

"The United States recognizes Great Britain's right to adjust the trade of its own nationals in their own country, but the United States seriously objects to interference with trade in this country."

The State Department will take the position that the blacklist as it interferes with the United States trade with neutrals is indefensible and wrong in principle.

No definite decision has been reached as to the manner in which the administration will combat the British boycott in the event that satisfactory results cannot be obtained by formal protest.

President Wilson is represented as being adverse to any trade war between the United States and Great Britain, and as opposed to retaliatory legislation. The President is understood to have stood out against any legislative machinery in deciding the question with Great Britain, believes the matter can be settled by diplomacy, it was said. There was a strong demand in influential administration circles, however, for legislative action.

One official, who has been closely identified with the negotiations with the British government on trade restrictions, said he was confident diplomatic protests would fail in this case as it had failed in all previous trade controversies with Great Britain.

"What the United States government needs," he said, "is legislation with teeth in it."

MANY COMPLAINTS MADE.

Retaliatory legislation giving the government the right to refuse clearance to foreign vessels which discriminate against Americans by refusing to accept their cargoes was one of the legislative remedies favored.

Secretary of Commerce Redfield, the president's chief adviser on trade, told the President that American business interests would be seriously injured by the discriminatory operation of the blacklist. He said also that numerous complaints had reached his department from firms discriminated against.

Attorney General Gregory advised with the President as to the legal remedies that may be applied to prevent restraints of trade. After the Cabinet meeting the Attorney General conferred with Acting Secretary of State Polk.

Marion Letcher, trade adviser of the State Department, has been in conference with officials of the British embassy. He presented the informal representations to the State Department, seeking the withdrawal of names of exporters from the blacklist. While these informal negotiations were in progress here, Ambassador Page at London was given instructions to take the individual cases up personally with the British foreign office.

PLAN COURSE OF ACTION.

It is indicated that at the outset the State Department will take action similar to that taken at the time the British government confiscated a large amount of the products of American shippers and detained about twenty of their ships in British ports.

At the time of the mail seizures the government filed a caveat, the object of which was to put Great Britain on notice that the United States considered her actions as in contravention of international law. The second object was to lay the foundation for claims against the British government. This will be preliminary to the vigorous protest planned by the government, which is to go fully into the principle and practice of the blacklist.

It is also apparent today that the United States will demand full compensation from Great Britain in all cases on the blacklist where it is proven corporations or individuals have suffered in trade with neutrals.

In the caveat filed in the packers case the State Department used strong language in warning Great Britain of the illegality of her acts.

STRONG LANGUAGE.

You are instructed to inform the British government, Ambassador Page was told in this caveat, that in so far as the interests of the American citizens are concerned the government of the United States will insist upon their rights under the principles and rules of international law as hitherto governing neutral trade in time of war, without limitation —by orders in council or other municipal legislation—and will not recognize the validity of prize court proceedings taken under restraints imposed by British municipal law in derogation of the rights of American citizens under international law.

British Seek Control of Swiss Exports.

By International News Service.

Berne, July 22.—Many Swiss manufacturers and exporters and the chambers of commerce of the different industrial centres have been semi-officially notified by the British Board of Trade that all Swiss goods exported to the United States and other neutral countries will in the future have to pass through England.

In the circular sent out from London it is stated that many of the foreign firms who acted as agents for Swiss manufacturers have been placed on the British blacklist and no goods consigned to such concerns will be permitted to reach their destination. The manufacturers are informed that they can avoid all trouble and loss by placing their foreign business completely in the hands of British firms and agents, and importing their raw materials in the same way.

All manufacturers and exporting firms are warned that they may lose their foreign markets entirely if they object to British control over their trade.

TURKISH VICTORY DENIED BY ITALY

London, July 22.—The Italian ambassador, upon instructions from his government, has issued a statement saying that the Turkish claim of a victory over Italian forces at Misrata is false. The Turkish statement that Italian troops and guns were captured is without foundation, it was said.

BRITISH STEAMER OF 2443 TONS SUNK

By International News Service.

London, July 22.—The British steamer Wolf, 2,443 tons, has been sunk.

The Wolf probably was destroyed by a German submarine in the North Sea as the latest maritime records state the vessel was in the Tyne on June 13.

ITALIAN SUBMARINE SUNK IN ADRIATIC

London, July 22.—The Vienna Admiralty announced that Austro-Hungarian torpedo boats have destroyed an Italian and another submarine in the Adriatic.

ASK M'CALL TO ASSIST ALLISON

An elaborate campaign is being conducted to prevent Van Kleek Allison, the former Columbia University student, from being forced to serve three years in the House of Correction, which sentence was imposed by Judge Murray after the editor of "The Flame" was found guilty in Boston's first birth control court case.

Allison's many friends, besides scores of people who are interested in the birth control movement, have rallied to his aid. They believe that Allison will be exonerated when his case is tried in the Superior Court.

A meeting of the friends of Allison was held last night at the home of Mr. E. C. Parrot of Bellington place. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. Cerias Carman Jack, wife of Professor Jack of Harvard. Four men, four women and several young girls attended the gathering.

ALLISON ADDRESSES MEETING.

Addresses were made by Allison, Mrs. Emily Trousisant of Brookline, who was one of Allison's bondsmen, Mrs. Parrot and Mrs. Hoffman.

In her address Mrs. Parrot stated that the Birth Control League has already started a campaign which she felt confident would secure freedom for Allison.

Mrs. Trouissent and Mrs. Parrot stated that they had called upon Governor McCall and had objected to the treatment accorded to Allison by Judge Murray.

Others who spoke at the meeting were Irving Granich, co-editor of "The Flame"; Dorothea Parrott and Beatrice Campion.

All the speakers urged that a protest be made to Governor McCall about the treatment received by Allison.

It was announced today that those in charge of the birth control movement here are planning a big meeting which will be held in Boston within a short time.

PELLETIER PLANS PROSECUTION.

While advocates of the birth control campaign are busy protecting about Allison, District Attorney Pelletier is preparing his case against the young editor. The two cases pending against Allison in the Municipal Court will be placed before the Grand Jury. Pelletier, it is believed, will also ask the Grand Jury to indict Allison on the cases on which he was convicted in the Municipal Court.

The District Attorney declares he intends to remain in charge of Allison's case and that he will try and have him given a long jail sentence, as he believes that the crimes of which he is accused are endangering the welfare of the community and the spotless womanhood of the young girls of Massachusetts.

It was pointed out that Judge Murray did not impose the maximum sentence under the statutes when he found Allison guilty on three counts. The law provides for a maximum sentence of two years or a fine of from $100 to $1,000, or both, for having or distributing obscene literature.

MAY QUIT BELGIUM IF BILLION IS PAID

By International News Service.

Amsterdam, July 22.—Placards announcing that Germany may evacuate Belgium on the payment of $1,000,000,000 indemnity have been posted in the barracks of Ghent, says the Echo de Belge today. The posters also state that negotiations have been started between the United States and Germany relative to the giving up of Belgium.

REFUSE ONE-CENT OFFER BY ROAD

The employes of the Middlesex & Boston Street Railway Company, who have demanded a scale of wages calling for thirty cents an hour for the first year, thirty-five cents an hour for the second year and thirty-eight cents for the third year, have voted unanimously to reject the offer of an increase of one cent for the present rates of twenty-four, twenty-six and thirty cents for the first three years, respectively, one cent.

The matter will be submitted to arbitration.

WAR SUMMARY

The French reported today that the Germans have again taken the offensive at Verdun, delivering vigorous assaults. The attacks were repulsed, however.

South of the Somme, the French say, the Germans also attacked in an effort to win back trenches lost two days ago. This attack is also reported as having been repulsed.

A German counter attack near Pozieres, and another in the Foureaux wood, are reported by the British. The first failed; the second recaptured the northern part of the wood.

The Germans have issued an extended statement which is in effect a summary of operations, and which gives the German view of the situation.

This statement reports an attack in force near Fromelles, which is south of Armentieres, and well north of the Somme battle line. Two English divisions are reported by the Germans to have participated. The attack was repulsed, 2,000 British dead were counted on the field and 481 British were taken prisoners.

The Germans further report that the big allied blow of two days ago was delivered over a twenty-seven-mile front. Two hundred thousand men participated in the attack on the part of the allies. The Germans repulsed the attack everywhere except east of Hardecourt, where trenches were taken by the French over an 800-metre front. Twelve hundred allied prisoners were taken.

This statement agrees with the allied communique, which claimed no distinct gains except east of Hardecourt—which the Germans admit—and in Foureaux wood—which the British say has been partially lost again.

The third week of the allied drive ends today. The allied troops have wrested about forty-five square miles of territory from the Germans. Losses have, of course, been heavy on both sides; and applying the rule which has held good throughout the war, the losses may be estimated as in the proportion of two Germans to three allies. Roughly, the figures are probably about 100,000 allies to 65,000 Germans. The Germans hold something over 20,000 square miles of Belgian and French territory.

Russian attacks southwest of Lutsk have ironed out a Teutonic salient about eight miles deep by twelve miles long, in the region of Berestetschko. They are now on the Galician frontier at this point, and are nowhere less than sixty miles from Lemberg, their first goal of any importance.

When she arrives the Bremen will be judged on her own merits solely. The decisions in the Lusitania case will not figure whatever. This means that if the Bremen arrives, she stands the same dangers of internment that the Deutschland, the Deutschland case, of course, will in no way affect my report.

Personally, I cannot see how it can be known that she will enter Boston, except by means of some who has heard from her. Even should she have a wireless and operator on board, the danger of communication would be too great.

BACON STUDIES TROOPS IN FIELD

Field Headquarters, Mexico, via Wireless to Columbus, N. M., July 22. —Robert Bacon, ex-Ambassador to France, and Dr. R. P. Strong, of the Harvard Medical School have reached here. They are going over the American lines of communication to study conditions regarding soldiers in the field.

They abandoned the truck train upon which they left Columbus at Vistia de Los Alamos, thirty miles north of here, where it was struck by a sandstorm and came near getting through the mud after a tropical deluge.

BRITISH STEAMER ASHORE IN FOG

VON LINSENGEN AGAIN FORCED TO RETREAT

By International News Service.

Petrograd, July 22.—General von Linsengen's Austro-German army in Volhynia is again retreating, according to information that reached Petrograd today in advices from the front.

Following six days of steady attacking along the Lipa River, the Germans were compelled to fall back to avoid having a big section of the army cut off and captured.

By constant battering the Russians crossed the Lipa, although the Teutons had taken up strong positions along the river, which they fortified and defended with many batteries of guns of every calibre.

General von Linsengen's army had the double task of defending Kovel from the Southeastern side, and also Lemberg from the Northeast. The defeat of the troops opens the way for a further advance against the Gallician capital from the region of Lutsk and may also compel the retreat of the forces of General von Bothmer-Ermoli from the sector of Brody.

The Russians have made heavy captures along the Lipa, particularly in the district where the Styr flows into the Lipa. General Brusiloff, who is commanding the Russians in Volhynia, is giving the harassed Germans and Austro-Hungarians no rest and fighting is continuous.

The great masses of fresh Russian troops which can be continually drawn upon enables General Sakaroff to maintain steady pressure. Sufficient ammunition has been accumulated by the Russians to keep up their mighty offensive movement indefinitely. Although at some points, the Russians have advanced far from their bases, the attacks show no signs of weakening.

FRANCE BARS STEEL AND IRON PRODUCTS

Paris, July 22.—The government has issued another decree prohibiting the importation, except for government account, of certain foreign products. Prominent in the list of prohibited articles are platinum, aluminum, iron, steel, pure copper, lead, tin, zinc, nickel, mercury, antimony, tool steel, steel rails, wire, pig iron, hoops, cables, railroad, street car and wagon wheels, hubs, tires, axles and forgings, steel, chemically and otherwise treated, including paving blocks, stakes and charcoal.

SCORES OF BAY STATE TROOPERS MADE ILL AS FLIES HIT CAMP

By BERT FORD.

Second Massachusetts Brigade Headquarters, El Paso, Tex., July 22.—The 7,000 or more National Guardsmen from Massachusetts, encamped on the Mexican border, are being attacked from unexpected quarters by foes that are troublesome and dangerous.

Armies of disease-laden flies have invaded the camps of the Bay State troops and their work is being aided by that grizzled agent known as General Red Tape.

General Red Tape has hemmed in the Massachusetts units so effectively that the commanding officers have been obliged to pay for gasoline out of their own pockets or private funds in order to operate the very useful motor trucks presented by patriotic individuals and organizations.

STOVER FOOTS BILL.

When Colonel Stover, commander of the Fifth Regiment, tried to obtain a supply of gasoline from the Quartermaster's Department here yesterday, he was told that the Federal Government would not supply oil for trucks attached to signal guard units. So Colonel Stover dipped down in his jeans and bought five gallons of gasoline himself in order to permit operation of the regimental auto truck for important hauling.

Then he reported the matter to General Sweetser, commander of the brigade, who took it up with headquarters. The War Department has put itself on record as refusing to pay for the running of auto trucks placed at its disposal without cost.

These trucks are just as much a part of the equipment of the National Guard as their rifles and ammunition and tents, but because the government was given them instead of having to buy them, there is no means of checking off gasoline requisitions for the trucks.

The same rule applies to motorcycles and headquarters automobiles, but as the latter are being used more for convenience than for military expediency the injunction is not so bothersome as relates to messenger cars. There is a feeling among the militia organizations that the government ought to pay for operating regimental auto trucks and that Uncle Sam should be thankful that National Guard units have them.

LUMBER IS LACKING.

More than 2,000 army trucks have been received here within the past two weeks. They will be supplied with government-owned gasoline purchased by the people's money, because they were bought by the regular army. This may be called a link move against the militia by General Red Tape.

Lack of lumber is another handicap. The regulars have converted their tents into semi-bungalows with lumber and fly-screening appropriated by the federal government, but lumber appropriations had run out by the time the National Guardsmen reached the border, and the officers had to pay for flooring and screening their border domiciles.

Lumber for this purpose, however, is not nearly so urgent as lumber for mess houses where the men may eat in comfort away from the broiling sun and flies and alkali dust and sand storms. A week ago a prominent militia officer announced that the War Department has promised to build the mess houses for the militia, indicating a long stay on the border, now estimated anywhere from three months to a year.

But there is no sign of boards or workmen to date. Meanwhile five companies of the Ninth Regiment have erected cool, spacious mess houses from company funds, but the majority of infantry companies and the artillery, cavalry, signal corps, ambulance company and field hospital are without them.

HAVE TO EAT DUST.

This means that the men have to squat in the sun, their tin plates and food exposed to flies and dust and to a sun that destroys the flavor of viands within a very few minutes. The men say they grow dizzy in the midday desert heat and that it hurts their appetite and that frequent sand storms coat their food with dust.

In fact the camp saying is that every man who is compelled to eat in the open "has alkali and some food three times a day."

This in itself is injurious to health, but not nearly so hazardous as the flies which come in thousands from the latrines, a nasty, black, buzzing horde, which completely cover food, and which make the heat harder to bear.

An army surgeon said today that all of the cases of dysentery that have keeled over the line of duty were far more than the heat even, were due to germs carried to the mouth by flies. The other day a mess sergeant offered me a rice pudding with raisins to eat in the open, but it was so smeared with flies that I could scarcely see the rice and there was no hope of glimpsing the raisins.

This is what men used to clean, wholesome food are compelled to face, and it is the most disagreeable feature of their life on the border. I have seen thousands of flies sticking to meat while cooks were trimming and chipping it for stews. And the bread is covered with them.

MEN NEED MESSHOUSES.

Therefore, it would seem to one at this end of the question that the Society for the Promotion of American Preparedness and all the other public and philanthropic organizations or individuals anxious to befriend the soldiers from the north could make life much easier for them and far safer, if funds for mess houses were raised.

In this respect Boston has been eclipsed by cities like Lawrence and Lowell and Worcester, which have sent money enough to build mess shelters right away, and they are up.

K Company of Clinton raised one from funds sent by townspeople, and so did G Company of Worcester and F Company of Lawrence, and M Company of Lowell.

But I Company of Boston had to erect one from money subscribed by the men themselves, and it hasn't all been paid for. And the men of the other Boston companies are going without them and are taking daily chances with flies and disease. In my estimation mess houses are more essential than any other thing on the boundary.

They not only make meals more enjoyable but they also serve the purpose of club and lounging rooms and between meals the mess tables are lined with soldier lads writing home.

K Company has a piano in its mess house. F Company is to get one. The Lawrence company boasts of much talent. Its members are to hold a minstrel show in a week or so. Private Higginbottom, company comedian, is to fill the tambo and end. Private "Tom" Linson will be bones, and there are to be solos by Privates Davis and Driscoll, and Corporal Morrison is to give an impersonation of Harry Lauder. Private Scott is to do a Scotch comedy sketch and "Flugar" Doherty is to sing.

ELECT A CAPTAIN.

Private Robert H. Logue of C Company, son of Charles H. Logue, former Schoolhouse Commissioner of Boston, was given a new berth yesterday, that of stamping aluminum identification checks for his company. "Bob" has developed into some engraver.

Lieutenant Daniel E. Christian, who has been acting commander of M Company of Lowell, will be elected captain today. Other elections are to be held today in the Ninth Regiment and a grist of promotions will be announced.

John N. Murphy of Natick, graduate of North University, and a resident of Natick, is to be appointed captain of the regimental commissary to succeed his father, Daniel Murphy, who failed in the physical examination at Framingham.

Colonel Logan has wired to Adjutant General Cole to send to the Massachusetts camps on the border the Stats moving picture outfit to entertain the men. A suggestion that films showing home scenes be included was not welcomed by the men, who feared such pictures would make them homesick.

GET HORSES AND MULES.

Each of the three Massachusetts infantry regiments here received 452 horses and mules today, the quota per regiment being forty-eight saddle horses, ninety-two draught mules, six saddle mules and eighteen pack mules.

C. Lindloff, an artillery sergeant, tested the field pieces of the Massachusetts Field Artillery. He said that until they had been readjusted they would not be fit for service.

The battery A outfit had a birthday celebration yesterday, Captain Edward B. Richardson ordering the day a day-off birthday. The company cook made a birthday cake about a yard square, candles and all, and the whole battery marched up the company street with the band and fed the cake-bearers in the lead. The procession stopped in front of Captain Richardson's tent where he was presented with the cake and a traveling clock with an inscription thereon.

It didn't make any difference if the heat did twist the candles, because candles have to be kept on the table or they drop like faded lilies.

Nearly all of the men of Battery B have recovered from the effects of ptomaine poisoning due to canned corned beef. Fully one-half out of the 150 were poisoned, but only slightly. The accident may mean the banning of canned beef. Battery B was excused from all drills and routine and the patients clung to the shelter of canvas.

ACT AS NURSES.

It was exciting in the artillery camp with all lights burning after taps and every tent a young hospital. The men from Battery A, known as the Governor's Foot Guard, from the other battery, all showed fine spirit, acting as nurses, messengers and messengers and there was little sleep for anybody from Colonel Sherburne down, Lieutenant Colonel Cobb, who even need feel no concern.. It was only an incident outbreak but did cause a scare.

The second field kitchen reached the field artillery camp. It was bought from a fund subscribed by the people of Lynn and Swampscott. The first one to arrive was the gift of Mrs. Francis Gray of Swampscott.

Captain Arthur W. Green has sent a telegram on behalf of Colonel Sherburne to Mrs. Gray and to the women of Lynn and Swampscott, acknowledging the receipt of the kitchens and praising the donors for their public spirit. The telegram to the women of Swampscott and Lynn read:

"The field kitchen subscribed by the people of Lynn and Swampscott arrived. Batteries appreciate gifts. A fullest extent. Spirit and health of all the men excellent.

Colonel Graves and his men of the Eighth Regiment cannot longer crow about having the only chow-gun among the militia forces on the border, for the artillery has gone them one better.

$20,000 GIFT FOR VERMONT HOSPITAL

Burlington, Vt., July 22.—Treasurer C. P. Smith of the Mary Fletcher Hospital has announced a gift to the hospital of $25,000 from Mrs. Calef of Washington, Vt. Mrs. Calef last week gave a similar sum to the Health Hospital in Brattleboro. Various other institutions have received $5,000 each from the same source in the past year.

EARL NOT A CITY EMPLOYE WHEN HE ENLISTED

It was said at the Mayor's office today that John J. Earl of the Ninth Infantry, who complained at El Paso that he had lost his job in the fire department because he was at the front with the National Guard, had no job as a fireman to lose.

In a dispatch from El Paso yesterday it was stated that Earl was a private in the Ninth Massachusetts and went to Texas with that organization, and that he was discharged from the fire department because of his absence. It was also stated that his family was suffering at home because of the loss of his pay.

At the Mayor's office today Secretary C. O. Power said that Earl voluntarily resigned from the fire department on June 5, some time before there was any talk of calling out the Massachusetts militia. At that time he was on a vacation in St. Louis.

WROTE TO GRADY.

He wrote a letter to Commissioner Grady, asking him to date his resignation June 13.

On June 26 the first contingent of Massachusetts troops started for the border, and a couple of days before that Earl, who, according to the statements at the Mayor's office, had ceased to be a fireman, enlisted in the Ninth Infantry.

Later the City Council passed an order giving thirty days' leave of absence to all city employes who were in the military service and under orders to go to the border. Upon learning of this action Earl asked Mayor Curley if it could be arranged so that he could take advantage of this order. The Mayor, according to today's statement, told him he would do what he could for him.

Then Mayor asked Commissioner Grady about it, and he said that nothing could be done for Earl, because he had resigned from the department and was not a city employe.

COULD NOT BENEFIT.

The Mayor then referred the matter to the city law department and was advised that Earl could not have the benefit of the City Council's orders.

After these investigations C. O. Power, secretary to the Mayor, wrote to Earl at El Paso, telling him that Fire Commissioner Grady could not reinstate him and grant him leave of absence. Mr. Power said in his letter that upon Earl's return to Boston the Mayor would be willing to take the matter up again with the view of determining whether Earl could be reinstated.

It was said at the Mayor's office that Earl's resignation from the fire department was voluntary, and that he had no wife or other dependents who would suffer by his absence with the militia. He has a brother and sister, but at City Hall it is stated that they are self-supporting.

Bliss Says Militia Is Ready to Fight

By International News Service.

San Antonio, Tex., July 22.—"The national guard remnants will be thoroughly fitted to go into Mexico if the need arises in two months or much less if the need is acute," said Major-General Bliss, "The militia forces on this border is splendid, health is magnificent, equipment is practically complete, the recruits are being whipped into shape with fine speed and the hardening process will soon be all of them are ready for campaigning."

This is the general's opinion after careful inspection of the camps of more than 25,000 militia at Brownsville and near there at Harlingen, McAllen, Pharr, Mercedes, San Benito, Llano Grande and Donna.

Polk Protests Making Carranza Note Public

Washington, July 22.—Acting Secretary of State Polk has protested to Ambassador-Designate Arrendondo against the making public in Mexico City of the Mexican note of July 11. It was pointed out that the action of the Secretary of War to continue Captain Thomas A. Roberts as commanding officer of the New England division of cavalry with the rank of colonel.

R. I. TROOPS TO GET ACTIVE SERVICE

By R. E. BAILEY.

El Paso, Tex., July 22.—Indications in Camp Pershing today are that the Rhode Island troops will soon see active service. Horses have not been delivered, but out of 7,000 horses in corral here the squadron will be fitted out, according to an army officer here.

In the signal squad each troop has been ordered to drill full time and become proficient. Supplies of all kinds are being rushed to quartermaster of each troop.

New water facilities are being rushed here and put in place by Mexican workmen. Yesterday morning the entire squadron took field in extended order drill, two troops being pitted against two other troops. In the afternoon drill was in signal work by troops.

Major Richards lectured on the work of men in camp and field and on importance of concealment while in action, work in extended order. Three cheers were given at the end of talk. The talks are to be regular features.

The ambulance corps drilled with wagons. They also took a short hike. Battery A drilled at target practice. The men are shaping up well, according to Captain Everitte Chaffee, in command. Private Sidney Sullivan, Troop B, made a big hit at concert of Massachusetts troops. Troop B's quartet is to sing at concert there this evening. The same kind of concerts are to be inaugurated by Rhode Island men in a few days. Many of the men plan to go to the big concert Sunday evening.

Lack of State to provide for depended families of men will cause depletion of each troop of approximately 25 per cent, unless something is done. Both officers and men are very indignant.

It is believed that the people in Rhode Island do not realise seriousness of situation and that Rhode Island men will probably see active service before long. Unofficial information received from army officer not quoted, is to effect that we shall go within one month.

Many of married dependent men want to go home, but may be forced to do so to protect families.

Bullet Speeds by Granite State Guardsmen

Loredo, Texas, July 22.—Colonel Michael J. Healy, commanding the First New Hampshire Infantry, with Major Russell Wilkins, Captain George P. Elliott and Captain Lynch are today receiving congratulations on their escape from being injured, perhaps fatally, by the accidental discharge of a defective rifle in the Mission Brigade headquarters, the bullet from which sped through the headquarters of the Granite State regiment. The officers were standing in the headquarters tent when the bullet tore through, striking Captain Elliott's truck, passing through an overcoat and pair of boots.

A terrific wind storm came up, blowing down the tents of the regiment, and was followed by a downpour of rain, the first in Loredo for a year. The Second Maine Regiment is now on patrol duty, and the officers of the New Hampshire regiment have just returned from the camp of the Fourth Missouri, where they were entertained by the officers of the western outfit. The health of all the men is good, and water has been piped into the camp for shower baths. The New Hampshire boys find Loredo pleasant, in spite of the fact that the population is two-thirds Mexican, and quite a bit hotter than the hills of the Granite State.

Sand and Rain Beat Down on Soldiers

By S. T. MOORE.

Columbus, N. M., July 21.—The Second Massachusetts Regiment witnessed an unusual weather phenomenon here when, at the termination of a terrific sand storm, a downpour of rain followed for almost an hour, with the sun shining as brightly as usual. The dust storm was the same old story of dirt everywhere, and the shower that followed gave a welcome relief from the heat.

The shower baths were closed down this afternoon for repairs to the pump, and when the rain storm came, a few officers and many enlisted men, not to be cheated from their afternoon shower, ran out with their birthday suits and cavorted while the rain lasted.

The physical examination of the regiment has been completed. There was but one definite rejection, and decision was reserved in three cases.

The water supply in the new camp site is now established and it is likely that the regiment will move shortly.

PLATTSBURG IS ORDEAL AFTER NEW TEST

By JOHN B. ATKINSON.

Plattsburg, N. Y., July 22.—Sore shoulders are the rule among the Boston business men at Plattsburg today, since they started in rifle range work, and for the first time experienced the kick in the shoulders that only a brand new Springfield rifle can give.

All last week and part of this they have been practicing with sub-calibre rifles in the gallleries, but now for the first time have used their new government rifles. The range work will continue until Wednesday and the men have their hardest session in camp before them. They are not very well, though—these Boston bankers, brokers and professional men.

They are out to excel the record made last week by the juniors from Boston and their practice indicates they have a good chance of doing so. Rifle range practice is not easy work by any means. Boston rookies who are wont to drive to their State street offices at 9 o'clock every morning now turn out at 4:45 a. m. and are safe in their cots at 9:30 every night.

When they are not actually firing they are working on the drill ground and the keenness which they show for their work surprises even those officers who have had charge of preceding camps. They are soldiers every minute while they are here and their only form of recreation in the films, of which many a dignified Boston merchant has become an ardent follower.

Their interest in the Mexican situation—even in their knowledge of military science, and it will not be surprising if a full war strength regiment of Plattsburg men volunteers for service on the border.

Execute Villa Chief and Ten Followers

By International News Service.

Mexico City, July 22.—Augustin Gomez, a Villa chieftain, and ten followers, were captured and executed in Zacatecas Thursday by Constitutionalists.

It is generally understood that Alberto Pani, director-general of the National Railways, will be a member of the mixed commission to settle the differences between Mexico and the United States. Pani was subsecretary of the department of public instruction under President Madero. It is believed the commission will meet in Montreal, Canada, within ten days. Colonel Simon Diaz has been appointed Governor of Guerrero.

VILLA SHOT BY ONE OF HIS OWN MEN

By JOSEPH TIMMINS.

San Antonio, Tex., July 23.—With a detailed description from a confidential source and Villa's operations around Jiminez in his possession, General Funston said he would not be surprised to learn officially he had captured Torreon, or had at least gained control of the railroads radiating from that city.

From another source also regarded by him as absolutely authentic, Funston has at least the full story of Villa's wound. Villa was shot in the right leg below the knee at Guerrero, during the bandit attack on that town by one of the Mexicans whom he had impressed into his service at El Valle in his flight from Columbus.

Another important contribution to Funston's information concerning Villa came in a report by General Funston. The commander of the punitive expedition learned definitely that Villa was moving on Torreon with 1,800 men, flushed by successes at Jiminez, Corralitas and Jimul.

BANDIT IS ACTIVE AGAIN.

The sum of these official reports is determination that Villa has again become a figure to reckon it. It becomes not simply fairly probable that while peace agents are proceeding toward a proper solution of the international troubles, Villa will be wrestling the control of northern Mexico from Carranza and Obregon.

Here is General Funston's new account of the wounding of the bandit chief:

At El Valle, Villa, on his flight before Dodd's dying column, seized twenty-five men and boys to form a command. When he got over on the continental divide to the west of Namiquipa, he attacked the Carranza garrison at Guerrero. As is his custom, he waited outside, and when the fight was at a critical point rushed forward, this time on foot, to encourage his men and was shot in the slaughter.

While the rest of the El Valle contingent was in the rear, and one of the men shot him from behind. The bullet struck his right calf and lodged against the bone. By a clever ahlit the El Valle men fled out of responsibility for the act and Villa became convinced he had been hit by a sniper.

When Villa rode into Jiminez in a coach July 5, the day after the capture of the town by his men, his leg was bandage-swathed heavily. He limped and used a crutch. He was scrupulously heard and was haggard, but withal he was the same dare-devil Villa.

ATTACKED CARRANZA FORCE.

Pershing reports that when Villa attacked the Carrancistas at Jiminez June 28, he inflicted a loss of 300 killed and wounded.

Villa's loss, other sources. General Funston learned today that Villa was well with his commander when he attacked General Ramos just below Jiminez, July 3, and signally defeated it. The next day the bulk of Villa's command advanced on Jiminez.

Many of the Carrancistas escaped, but a few of them were captured and slaughtered. Some of the citizens, known to be Carranzistas, were slain and the ears of others were cut off. The town was looted and the bandits stripped the clothing off men in the streets.

July 5 Villa came into the city, his united force numbering more than 1,800 men. Villa made a violent speech on the Plaza, promising to visit his wrath upon all Carranzistas and to drive the gringoes out of Mexico. The looting continued until July 7, when Villa ordered the city and started for the Rio Florido region, from whence he promised to return "in a few days."

General Funston has no definite information that Villa took more than the outskirts of Parral, in the attack of July 14.

Villa's augmented force, numbering 1,500 well fed and well equipped men, with some confidence as of the old days of invincibility of Villa's genius restored, the bandits moved on Torreon, Funston says.

CONTROLS RAILROAD POINTS.

Pershing's confirmation of necessity was some days old and the receipt of a report of the reports arriving at border points from Mexican sources that Villa has actually captured the spoke of the Northern railways.

General Funston points out that if Villa is in possession of the railroad entering Torreon he dominates the situation almost as throughly as if he held the city itself. If he has sufficient force he can prevent reinforcements reaching Torreon he probably will capture the city.

CARRANZA MEN JOIN NEW PARTY

By WALLACE E. SMITH,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

El Paso, Tex., July 22.—Leaders of the new Legalista party of Mexico assert that all of northern Mexico, with its army of Carranza soldiers, is ready to support the recently formed organization that hopes to secure control of the southern republic.

They further declared that only the delay of the new party in securing a promise of recognition from the United States government prevented an immediate consummation of its aims.

The Legalista junta continues its conferences here and efforts are being made to clear up some minor differences. It is known that the Cientificos, allied with the party, object to the prominent part in its affairs taken by General Felipe Angeles, Manuel Monilla and others who have figured in revolutionary activities.

It is known that the Legalistas have not been able to agree on Vasquez Gayle as their president. Their chief resolve is that the prospective revolution will be a bloodless one. This has caused considerable conjecture on the part of those experienced in the ways of Mexico.

TREVINO JOINS PARTY.

It is reported that General Jacinto Trevino, the Carranza commander at Chihuahua, for whose arrest has brought the international situation to a crisis, is one of the leading members of the new Legalista party.

With his power solidified in the cause the seizure of northern Mexico without bloodshed will be simplified. Trevino was strong enough to dictate to Carranza and Minister of War Obregon when they attempted to transfer him a few weeks ago. Incidentally the transfer order is said to have been issued after Obregon's agents had learned of Trevino's affiliations with the Legalistas.

The junta of the Legalista party will hold another conference tomorrow. At this meeting the members hope to draft the party's formal platform to be sent to Washington. They will also attempt to reach a unanimous choice for President, although some form of commission government is expected to be indorsed at their meetings.

VILLA HAS 1,800 MEN.

Trevino's alliance with the Legalista party has been presented as an explanation of Villa's freedom. Although able to throw far superior forces against the renegade chieftain, Trevino has chosen to withhold his strength. Thus he holds his army together, defying Carranza and ready to support the new revolution.

Reports reaching General Pershing and forwarded through General Funston to Washington declare that Villa's force is 1,800 strong. Several bands which have been working their way north to Chihuahua are said to be in the neighborhood of Carrizal. Juarez is without definite reports from the South. Its communication has been cut.

The greatest official activity in the ancient town, across the Rio Grande, was apparent in the groups of workingmen about the powerful wireless station) erected by Villa during his occupation of Juarez. This has been ordered removed and is being dismantled.

Revolution or no revolution, there is to be a Fiesta celebration tomorrow in Juarez, and the inhabitants are preparing to make the most of the day.

Villa is the only Mexican who violated Fiesta days with combat.

Bay State Troops Capture Smugglers

By FREDERICK A. WARD.

El Paso, Tex., July 22.—While on outpost duty Company A of the Ninth Infantry captured four suspicious Mexicans who were carrying a small quantity of ammunition into Mexico.

The Mexicans were first observed by a sentry as they attempted to approach the line under cover of some high grass. He ordered them to halt, and they kept on he called the corporal of the guard, who disarmed them and searched their ammunition.

After relieving them of the ammunition they were sent back into Texas under guard.

A Company also captured another suspicious Mexican wading across the river who was turned back to the American side.

Extensive improvements around the headquarters of the Ninth Infantry, where a border of white washed rocks is being put in place around the adjutant general's office. Directly in front of the porch a large cactus plant will be set out and various trees and shrubs are to be planted.

Plans for the new Eighth Infantry bandstand are completed and work will start today. Electric lights will be installed and a concert given every evening. The Eighth will be the first National Guard regiment in El Paso to have a bandstand.

DIARY OF MISS ADAMS FURNISHES NEW CLEW

Harris said, on behalf of the wounded man:

"Thank God, my dear brother-in-law shows signs of possible recovery, so he can return and vindicate himself. This I am sure he can do from the statements made to me on the night following the catastrophe, when he was certain there was no hope of his living.

"Why, he said to me as I entered the room of his room mate, 'Dr. Harris, I'm shot.'

"Harry, why did the little fool (Atwood) do it?'

replied that the only thing I could see was that he was jealous of my brother-in-law said:

"Well, what in the name of all that is good could he be jealous of me for?'

The fact that Dr. Harris took the operating table and was brought back to life entered as another spectacular phase of the case.

Dr. John Hawes Smith, surgeon, is a close friend of Dr. Harris.

Dr. Harris was sent for by Dr. Smith and for Dr. James H. Stevens of the Copley-Plaza, and Dr. Stevens arrived and had Dr. Harris taken to the City Hospital.

Dr. Smith arrived at the hospital at the same time, and immediate preparations were made for operating upon the wounded man.

HEART STOPPED BEATING.

In the midst of the operation all bodily functions ceased.

The heart stopped beating.

No pulse could be detected.

All signs of life disappeared.

Dr. Smith and his assistant grasped the pulse and started artificial respiration. At the end of a few moments natural respiration began, and the patient lived.

All hope of removing the three bullets from Dr. Harris' body was given up for the time being.

An example of the wonderful vitality of Dr. Harris and his great presence of mind was cited today in the fact that, when he lay desperately wounded on the floor of his office, he was able to direct two women present to bind his arms and thus avoid any inquests in order that the blood supply might be kept in the limbs and the blood pressure on the arteries eased at the same time, so as to allow the wounds in the body to coagulate as much as possible.

A personal diary—one of the most intimate things in a girl's life—kept by Dr. Celia Paine Adams, the poison victim in the great "drugging" tragedy, loomed forth today as a new clew in this sinister mystery. This diary is among the possessions of Dr. Adams seized by the police.

The police not only are keeping this diary secret, but also explain that it may figure as evidence "in the government's case."

Captain Thomas F. Goode of the Back Bay station said today:

"There is a diary in this case which is now in the possession of the police. We do not feel that we should divulge the contents, as IT MAY BE USED AS EVIDENCE IN THE GOVERNMENT'S CASE.

But Captain Goode did not specify the government's case against Dr. Edward de Loreia Atwood for shooting Dr. Wilfred E. Harris.

SIGNIFICANT WORDS.

If the Captain Goode had reference to a "case" in the poisoning of Dr. Adams this lends added significance to the investigation of the poison mystery.

Another important development today was the news that the authorities are anxious to talk with Dr. Mary Campbell, partner of the dead osteopath.

The police say that they have been unable to get trace of Dr. Campbell since she started from Ashland, N. H., last Wednesday, the day after the tragedy, to attend Dr. Adams' funeral.

Still the police hope, if they can get in touch with Dr. Campbell, to obtain from her first-hand information as to Dr. Adams' office life and any heart matters which the dead osteopath may have talked over with her partner in girlish confidences.

The poison theory took a new slant today when the question was raised whether Dr. Adams may not have received poison prior to the last time she entered her office at Coolidge Corner.

News of the finding of the girl osteopath's diary was followed by a statement that there would be developments of a sensational nature within a day or two.

What these developments might be the police refused to divulge.

The last entry in the girl's diary is regarded by the police as significant. The statement, in her own handwriting, and written either late Sunday night last, or Monday, follows:

Met Ellie at the South Station at 7:30 Sunday night. We went to Revere Beach and sat a long time on the sand.

Discussed matter further.

"Ellie," according to the police, apparently refers to Dr. Eldridge de Loreia Atwood, the dead girl's fiance, and who is in the Charles Street Jail on a charge of attempting to kill Dr. Wilfred E. Harris.

The police are trying to learn what the "matter" was which Dr. Adams discussed with "Ellie." Their belief, they say, is that it was something which had a great deal to do with the destiny of the Brookline girl.

In Dr. Adams' office the police also found the torn bits of a memorandum.

These when pieced together read:

"Ask Dr. Harris what the treatment is in this case."

This the police also regarded as significant. They said it was probably written last Monday, indicating the girl had no thought of taking her life, inasmuch as she planned to consult Atwood's victim on some case she was treating.

FIND POISON TABLETS.

It is stated that the police found in Dr. Adams' office several bichloride of mercury tablets, but the belief is that it was not bichloride that the girl took. This belief led the police to a theory that the poison might have been administered elsewhere.

The police are attempting to answer these questions:

If the poison was taken into the body outside the office, what were the circumstances of it?

Did she take it willingly, or was it administered to her by another?

Was the mercury poison given her in some form which warded off her suspicion, until she had had time to make the poison noticeable to her until some time later?

Was an attack of nausea cause her to go to her office instead of to her home?

Did she try to reach an antidote in realizing that she just have been poisoned?

This new angle to the case deepens the mystery, which is proving the most baffling the police have faced in a long time. The police point out that her being fully clothed when her body was found would tend to bear out the theory that Dr. Adams had not willingly taken the poison.

And the point made by the police is that she left no farewell messages to friends or relatives.

This was regarded as most unusual. But Dr. Adams planned suicide, she would have penned notes of some kind to her family, the authorities assert.

The theory that the case was one of suicide has its strongest prop in the statement made by Dr. Adams soon after his arrest for shooting Harris. He suggested a double motive for the tragedy, beginning with an alleged betrayal at the hands of Dr. Harris, of confidences Dr. Adams might in her decision that this fact contributed a bar to her marriage to Atwood.

DOUBT ATWOOD'S STORY.

The police say they doubt Atwood's story of Miss Adams' alleged unhappiness. They are inclined to believe the statement made by Winthrop Adams, the young woman's brother, that there had been no betrayal and that her relations with Harris were above suspicion. Her own reputation and Harris' standing among his osteopath confreres, when thrown in the balance in these doubts to tip the scales of judgment against Atwood's explanation of the affair.

Moreover, they do not believe that any threats with which she could have held Harris would be required her to take her life. According to Winthrop Adams, who spent Sunday in her company, she was never more cheerful in her life than she was that day, only a little more than twenty-four hours before she paid the fatal visit to her office.

If fear had loomed in front of her, it would have been some time or days before.

During the day she was, as usual, in her office. In the afternoon she had motored to Revere Beach and had her to go to dinner with him. He has since said that they did go to Revere, and afterward to a moving picture show in Boston. Had there been a sudden crisis in Celia Adams's affairs, it might reasonably be expected from Atwood's story to have come Monday night. But he denied that there was anything in the nature of a quarrel between them. That statement, to Miss Adams' friends, dispels the idea that fear could have been a motive for her self-destruction.

One of the things which the police say of suicide seem unlikely to the police investigators is the kind of poison that was used. If, as Atwood has said, she had contemplated suicide off and on for two or three years, she would have had abundant opportunities, with her knowledge of drugs, to find something that would have acted quickly and entailed comparatively little suffering.

She must have known, they say, that the action of mercury was slow and torturing.

TELL OF DOORS.

Though the door of the office was guarded by a chain on the inside, there was another door leading from the waiting room into a similarly shaped waiting room in the adjoining office of the Taxi Company. John Candow, the janitor of the building, says that this door was locked on Monday night, but there might have been a key that fitted it, and that would have made it a means of egress for Miss Adams' office.

Plain clothes men searched the records of wholesale and retail drug stores in and around Boston to discover the source from which came the poisonous mercury that caused the death of Dr. Celia Paine Adams on Tuesday.

A motive judged sufficient by the police to have led to suicide, despite the story told by Dr. Atwood, has not yet been discovered, though it is believed that letters in the hands of the police may give a new turn to the case. The letters which were secured from the offices of Dr. Harris in the Hotel Westminster are of such a nature as to be considered evidence in the case and the police officials decline to divulge the contents.

BROTHER TALKS.

The mystery surrounding who sent the telephone call to Dr. Atwood informing him of the condition of Dr. Adams was cleared when it was learned that a maid at the Adams home had hurriedly informed Dr. Atwood of the plight of his friend.

Immediately Dr. Atwood left his home in Woburn and rushed to the Commonwealth Hospital.

Winthrop Adams, brother of Dr. Adams, declared that there was no reason why his sister should take her own life.

"There was no reason in the world why my sister should commit suicide," said Mr. Adams. "She liked life and was not deeply in love with Dr. Atwood. There was nothing in her relations with Dr. Harris which would lead her to take her own life. She had a growing practice. I do not know how she got the poison or why she took it. All the pure and unadulterated fabrication of a man who was insanely jealous, and who, when he could not gain the woman he wanted, seeks to besmirch her reputation in hope it may save him some day from the gallows."

Since the shooting last Tuesday afternoon at the Hotel Westminster investigators have been quietly attempting to account for the whereabouts of Dr. Atwood on Monday evening and during the early hours of Tuesday morning.

Dr. Atwood said that he left Celia Adams at the Park street subway and that he went home to Woburn on the last train, one that leaves the North Station at 11:40. According to Edward Kenney, one of Dr. Atwood's counsel, that fact has been definitely established and at least three Woburn young men who had left Boston after was on that train. The men who, it is said by Attorney Kenney were on the 11:40 train Monday night and saw Dr. Atwood, were William E. Kane, Richard Walsh and James Connora.

The three young men were located late last night at their homes in Woburn and all agreed that they saw Dr. Atwood on the 11:40 train last Monday evening. According to William E. Kane, he and James Connors are certain that both were aboard the train at the North Station.

Passing through the car they saw Dr. Atwood. Connors made a passing remark while Kane, who went to high school with Dr. Atwood's brother and chatted with the doctor for a few minutes. According to Mr. Kane, the osteopath gave no indication of any special mental disturbance.

Richard Walsh said that he was on the train and sat in the seat behind Dr. Atwood. He knew the osteopath by sight, but was not acquainted with him. Walsh said he saw Kane and Connors in the same car.

All four left the train at Woburn Highlands, the stop being nearer their homes than the one at Woburn proper.

Dr. Mary Campbell, who occupied offices with Dr. Adams, is a building at Coolidge Corner, Brookline, has not been heard from, according to the police, who say they are anxious to question her. They simply wish to see her about Dr. Adams' habits and to see if any details she can furnish might throw any light on the case, the authorities announced.

Dr. Campbell left Boston a week ago last Wednesday. On that day she went to Ashland, N. H., to take charge for the Summer, as medical director, of the Winona Fields Camp for Girls, located a few miles outside of Ashland.

Dr. Campbell had gone to Dr. Adams the same afternoon, and also gave up her rooms at an apartment house on Francis street, where she had lived during the Winter.

When the police sought to find Dr. Campbell at Ashland, they learned that she had left that place at noon last Wednesday, following the receipt of a telegram from the Adams family notifying her of the daughter's death. Dr. Campbell told persons at the camp, and an aunt, Miss Harriet Capron of Montclair, N. J., who is staying at Ashland for the Summer, that she was going back to Boston to attend the funeral of her partner and look after her professional interests, it is said.

Since then, the police say, Dr. Campbell has not been heard from.

At the city Hospital Dr. Harris continues to improve, and the doctors say he may recover.

TO INFORM MRS. ATWOOD.

Today, Miss Susan De Loriea, Atwood's aunt, will start for Vinal Haven, Me., in order to break the news of his arrest to his mother who is recovering from a serious operation.

When Atwood was arrested, every precaution was taken to prevent his mother's learning of the affair, and for that reason all newspapers were withheld from her. Until the last day or two she is said to have begun to suspect that something was wrong.

She is not the only member of the family against whom Atwood made an attempt to kill Dr. Harris. Her oldest son, Joseph, a member of the naval reserve, is in the navy, and it is supposed that as yet he knows nothing of the case. Until he left on the cruise the two brothers had been almost inseparable. Joseph's wife and child are with the elder Mrs. Atwood at Vinal Haven.

At the Charles Street Jail Atwood has held several conferences with his lawyers.

SEVEN INJURED IN POWDER FLARE-UP

Morristown, N. J., July 22.—Seven men who had been injured in a powder flare-up at Kenvil, N. J., were brought here today for medical treatment. One of them is in a serious condition. Inquiries made by telephone at the plant where the explosion occurred brought the reply earlier that no one had been hurt.

Diary of Girl Osteopath May Furnish Police Key In Love Case Mystery

A diary kept by Dr. Celia Paine Adams may furnish a key which might throw light on the mystery of her death by mercury poisoning. From the diary, now in the hands of the police, there is made public this excerpt, written Sunday night or Monday:

Met "Ellie" at the South Station at 7:30 Sunday night. We went to Revere Beach and sat a long time on the sand.

Discussed matter further.

This is the last entry in the diary.

The police said that "Ellie" was in their opinion Dr. Eldridge de Loreia Atwood, held for the shooting of Dr. Wilfred E. Harris.

The police today turned their attention toward seeking the answers to these questions, suggested by the diary:

What was the "matter" discussed on the beach between the mystery victim and "Ellie"?

Did this "matter" bear upon the destiny of the girl osteopath?

Is not the diary's suggestion that the two had talked about this important "matter" before, and that it—whatever it was—had not been finally settled?

Is it possible that the "matter" had something to do with the charge made by Atwood, after his arrest, that Harris had betrayed Dr. Adams?

Another bit of evidence came in the torn bits of a memorandum found in the waste paper basket in Dr. Adams' office. Pieced together the bits read:

Ask Dr. Harris what treatment was in this case.

The police said that this was important if written Monday, as it would tend to show that the girl had no intention of killing herself, as she planned to ask Harris later regarding some case she was treating.

SENATE EFFORT FOR CASEMENT FAILS

Washington, July 22.—A strong effort to force the Senate to take immediate action on the Marcine resolution, requesting the President to intercede with the British government to prevent Sir Roger Casement from being executed, failed after a bitter debate.

A deeply involved parliamentary mix-up developed and after a stormy debate, which kept Vice-President Marshall busy pounding for order, the measure went over under the rules.

Senator Martine made a motion to discharge the foreign relations committee from consideration of his resolution. He was supported by Senators Vandaman of Mississippi and Phelan of California. Senator Phelan offered a substitute resolution modifying the language of the Martine resolution, and declared there was ample precedent for American intervention in such cases.

Senator Stone, chairman of the foreign relations committee, told the Senate that inquiry by the State Department, through Ambassador Page at London, showed that the British government would not receive representations concerning Sir Roger in a kindly spirit.

He said that the department had transmitted to the British government a plea for clemency from Mrs. Agnes Newman, Sir Roger's sister.

FUNGUS MENACES FOLIAGE OF TREES

A new brand of annoyance to the foliage of trees all over the State has been discovered. This time it is not the brown-tail or the gypsy moth, but is a variety of fungus bearing the imposing name of "gleosporium ampelophagum," and causes the leaves of shade trees to turn brown and shrivel up. Despite the high-sounding name, however, according to a bulletin issued by the State forester, it will not have a lasting effect on the trees beyond this season. The cause of the presence of the fungi, according to Professor A. Vincent Osmund, botanist of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, is due to the abnormally wet weather and high humidity.

GIRL MURDERED, MOTHER WOUNDED

Wilmington, Del., July 22.—Miss Catherine Bodjaska, aged twenty, was shot to death and her mother seriously wounded early today by an assassin at Brandywine Springs Park. The murderer mutilated Miss Bodjaska's body with a knife. Samuel Gangas, twenty-five, was arrested at his home here and charged with the crime, but declared he was innocent. He was released from prison yesterday after serving three months for annoying Miss Bodjaska.

MAN STRICKEN IN RESTAURANT DIES

Gascano Tenerico, twenty-four, of Second street, East Cambridge, while eating in a Hanover street lunch room was stricken ill. A doctor, summoned by the police of the Hanover street police station, ordered the man removed to the Relief Hospital. He died on the way to the hospital. Death is supposed to have resulted from natural causes. Medical Examiner Magrath was notified.

JAIL SENTENCE HALTS WEDDING AFTER THEFT

A real love romance was abruptly ended when Walter Miller of Pine street, San Francisco, was sentenced to six months in Charles Street Jail, charged with stealing an automobile belonging to Dr. Marshall H. Everett of Lincoln, Neb., July 10, while it was standing in front of the Hotel Westminster, in this city.

Miller at that time planned a marriage trip from Boston to San Francisco. He wanted an automobile and took Dr. Everett's, driving it down to the Public Garden, where he met his fiancee, Miss Margaret Kopp, and her companion, Miss Augusta Stein.

They entered the automobile and began their long journey for the West. Miller told Miss Kopp that at the end of the journey she would be married to him and their joy would be complete.

Miller was in too much of a hurry at some points in the journey and was arrested at Norwalk, O., charged with over-speeding.

The police had in his hand a printed Boston circular calling for the arrest of a young man answering the description of Miller. Boston officers were at once communicated with and Miller's arrest followed. The two young women were sent back to New York city. Miller said nothing after his trial except that "the course of true love never runs smooth," and if Margaret Kopp will have him after he serves his sentence he will make another automobile trip across the country under different circumstances.

JEALOUSY CAUSES DOUBLE TRAGEDY

By International News Service.

Alpine, Tex., July 22.—An artistic temperament, suddenly inflamed by jealousy, was ascribed today as the cause for the double tragedy in which Harry J. Spannell shot to death his beautiful wife and Lieutenant-Colonel Matthew Colbraith Butler, aged fifty-two, a handsome United States cavalry officer, here Thursday night.

The double tragedy has caused a profound sensation in both military and social circles along the border. Lieutenant-Colonel Butler, only recently promoted, was the son of Major Matthew Colbraith Butler of South Carolina. Mrs. Spannell was a noted Texas beauty, daughter of John Hoiland, a millionaire cattle rancher of Alpine.

Spannell, who is a musician of note both abroad and in the United States, steadfastly has refused to make any statement since he surrendered after the shooting. He was placed in the jail here, but owing to the threatening attitude of the populace was later spirited away and lodged in prison in another town. The authorities feared he might be lynched.

Ten years Spannell, then on the highway to fame as a musician, was appointed head of the department of music at Baylor University, Waco.

One of his pupils was the beautiful Miss Crystal Holland, then eighteen years old. Love came to share, with art, the musician's heart.

They were married nine years ago in Waco and after a short time went to live at her father's home in Alpine.

BOY ON BICYCLE KILLED BY AUTO

Hillsboro, N. H., July 22.—Norman Buttrick, twelve, while riding his bicycle on South Main street here today, was killed when an automobile owned and operated by James Zenio crashed into him. The boy was thrown to the ground with terrific force. He died later of internal injuries at a private hospital.

Irish Situation at Crisis Today, Says Newspaper

London, July 22.—The Daily Chronicle this morning says: "The meeting of the Irish parliamentary party today may have momentous consequences. The prospects of the bill which is to embody the terms of the Irish agreement are most discouraging, and if it deviates in any respect from the conditions arranged, it is foredoomed.

"Whatever the fate of the bill, it will be necessary, now that martial law is being mitigated, to appoint a minister for Ireland who shall be responsible to the House of Commons.

"It is understood the appointment will go to a Conservative, and the names of Henry Duke, K. C., and Sir Mark Sykes are mentioned."

Eddie Mahan to Lead Collegian Fight for Wilson

New York, July 22.—"Eddie" Mahan, Harvard's crack football fullback and baseball pitcher, will be chairman for the Woodrow Wilson college men's league, national committee Chairman McCormick announced just before leaving for Washington.

The new chairman will open headquarters at No. 2000 Madison avenue. Local organizations will be formed in Boston, Chicago, St. Louis and San Francisco.

NAVAL MILITIAMEN FLEET AT NEWPORT

Newport, R. I., July 22.—The squadron of nine battleships carrying naval militiamen of New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts and Maine put in here after a week of practice maneuvres off Block Island. The weekend will be spent here, with some shore leave for the enlisted men, and the fleet will return to the week of war practice Monday.

With the arrival of the reserve squadron the number of warships in Narragansett Bay was increased to sixty-nine, which is believed to be the largest fleet ever assembled in a New England harbor.

HUGHES WATCHES A SHIP IN DANGER

Bridgehampton, N. Y., July 22.—The four-master Norwegian sailing ship Clan Gailbraith went ashore today off Bridgehampton, and during the morning Charles Evans Hughes, Republican Presidential nominee, and members of his family spent some time watching the imperiled vessel. Captain Olson, master of the ship and his crew, remained on board. Mr. Hughes' interesting visit to have completed his acceptance speech.

MRS. SANGER PLANS CLINIC ON CONTROL

New York, July 22.—Mrs. Margaret Sanger, the birth control advocate, who has just returned from a trip over the country, plans to open a birth control clinic in Brooklyn about September 1. From this clinic she intends to dispense information regarding birth control to all who apply.

SAN FRANCISCO GETS A. O. H. SESSION

By a vote of four to one, the delegates to the A. O. H. convention, being held in this city, today voted to hold their next annual meeting in San Francisco, Cal. The announcement was greeted with enthusiastic cheers by the Westerners among the delegates.

This is the first time the organization has voted to hold its annual gathering in California.

The early part of today's session was taken up by preliminary meetings of the committees representing candidates for the national officers of the order. The principal contest is for president of the order, between Joseph McLaughlin of Philadelphia, present holder of the office, and Michael J. Rohan of Marquette University, Milwaukee.

Supporters of President McLaughlin in the lobby of the Copley-Plaza early today freely predicted he would be elected by a large majority vote. The Ladies' Auxiliary of the order is also in session and their election will probably be held later in the day.

With the official end of the convention in sight, the delegates agree that it has been one of the most successful in the history of the society. Everybody has had a good time, everybody is loud in praises of Boston hospitality, and everybody, a bit tired after a strenuous week, is eager to call a final adjournment and devote the few remaining hours to pleasure.

DELEGATES SUPPORT CASEMENT.

Both the men and the women put in one of the most arduous days yesterday in the history of the national conventions. From early morning until late at night business sessions were in order.

The interest attending the Casement question and the general Irish situation was largely responsible for the tremendous amount of business yesterday. This came in addition to a large amount of regular routine business. All in all, it was a busy day for the delegates at both conventions.

That the delegates at the A. O. H. convention are united in feeling tremendous indignation because of Great Britain's treatment of Sir Roger Casement and the Irish patriots was evidenced in no uncertain way.

The resolution that there would be strenuous opposition to the resolutions on the part of many of the Canadian delegates failed to materialize.

The resolutions were passed unanimously, with a spirit of enthusiasm that manifested itself in applause and cheers.

The feeling of resentment because of the treatment accorded the Irish patriots has been almost unceasing all through the convention, broke in full strength. The reading of the strong language in which was frequently interrupted with loud cheers.

WOMEN DELEGATES BUSY.

When the Rev. Fr. McDermott of Iowa moved that a telegram of sympathy be sent to Sir Roger Casement, the husband of the great audience rose to fever pitch.

The actual work of the conventions yesterday was confined to the time of the delegates. With business-like dispatch matters were expedited as far as possible, yet in spite of the most strenuous efforts, adjournment of the last session was impossible until late at night.

An interesting fight developed in the committee late this afternoon, regarding the report of the nominating committee. The contest was over whether the contest for national president was the big issue of the day.

Thursday evening, Mayor Curley, a band concert was given last night in Copley square. Thousands of delegates and friends thronged the square, and others lined the steps of the Public Library and various hotels in the immediate vicinity.

Adam Ordered Released.

Berlin, July 22.—The British steamship Adam, which was recently captured by a German torpedo boat, has been ordered released by the Admiralty because she was taken in Swedish territory waters.

30 RESCUED AT BLAZE IN MALDEN

Thirty men, women and children were aided by firemen and police, some of them being carried out bodily, in escaping from the fire which did $1,000 damage to the four-story Howard block at Nos. 364-368 Pleasant street, Malden, early today.

A bizarre feature of the fire was that it was discovered by Patrolman John Moran while he was looking out to the sidewalk for closer examination the body of a man, which he discovered at 4:20 in the rear of the Cox block, No. 370 Pleasant street, across the Boston and Maine tracks from the Howard block.

Moran was trying rear doors of the Cox block at that time. He found in the rear doorway of a restaurant the body of William Peters, a dishwasher employed in the restaurant. Peters was thirty-eight, married and came from Beverly. Pending an official statement from the medical examiner the police said they believed that Peters had stumbled, fallen and received fatal injury.

WARNS RESIDENTS.

Moran was lifting Peters' body out to the walk when he saw the glint of flames at the rear of the Howard block. Rushing to the quick dangers of fire in a four-story residential building, Moran left the Peters body, raced down the alley and found the flames leaping up at the wall of the wooden structure at the rear of a ground-floor restaurant, run by Mrs. John H. Toher.

Moran pounded on the building, yelled "fire" for all he was worth, raced to a nearby fire-alarm box, pulled an alarm and raced back, still shouting his vocal alarm to rouse the building tenants.

Mrs. Mary Hammond was trapped by smoke in her third-floor apartment and was carried down a ladder by firemen.

STAIRWAYS CUT OFF.

Angelo Ptoleny on the top floor could not find his wooden leg and was taken down the fire escape. After the fire his leg was found intact.

Smoke cut off escape by the stairways. The tenants made their way down the fire escape to the roof of a one-story L, from which they were taken off by firemen. Among those saved this way were:

Second floor—Mr. and Mrs. James McIntyre, Mabel, sixteen; Mary, three, and Jean Beatrice, eight months; Mr. and Mrs. William A. Lane, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Canfield and Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Riley and six children.

Third floor—Mrs. J. H. Toher and Louis, Edith and Miriam Toher. Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Rinaldo.

Top floor—Mrs. Edward Ball, Mary McDonald, Edmund Lawler and George Lawler, sixteen; George Price and Miss Mary Hammond. The block is owned by former Mayor George H. Fall.

COURT OFFICERS WAR ON "RUNNERS"

Two court officers have been stationed in the lower corridors of the Municipal Court by Chief John Quinn in a new effort to check the operations of "runners" who have been active there. The move is made in order to clear the court house of these men came from Chief Justice Rugg.

HEIRESS IN NEW COURT BATTLE FOR ESTATE

Hyannis, July 22.—Miss Marion Pomeroy Smith, the Hyannis girl heiress who won a great court victory over Charles C. Paine, her Massachusetts conservator, at Hartford, Ct., will resume her legal battle to obtain control of her estate here Monday. She is coming to Barnstable County to make Paine show cause why he should not be removed as her Massachusetts conservator.

In the recent court case at Hartford, Ct., Paine petitioned to be appointed as Connecticut conservator of Miss Smith. His petition was denied, the Court allowing the girl to select the Hartford Trust Company as her conservator.

FEAR FOR GIRL'S SAFETY.

Miss Smith's many friends here and in Connecticut fear that the "Cape Cod conspirators" may cause her defeat in court. It was reported here today that a mighty court battle was being planned to prevent the removal of Paine as the girl's conservator.

The Hyannis heiress, who was charged with turning this town upside down and causing trouble in the homes of some of its oldest and most respected families, claims Paine showed too much affection towards her. She alleges that on one occasion he patted a new pair of high shoes she wore.

When warned by friends that she will be forced to consent two petitions here, Miss Smith only laughed and declared that she is prepared to fight the present issues to a successful conclusion. One petition, which has been brought by Paine, the girl's grandmother, Mrs. Ruena Pomeroy, and others, asks that she be declared insane. She is charged with being a spendthrift, and also with debauchery. The other petition asks that Paine be appointed the girl's guardian in Massachusetts.

BALKED AT INSANITY PAPERS.

Marion declares she is thankful that she was not railroaded to an insane asylum by her Cape Cod enemies before she was given an opportunity to vindicate herself at Hartford. It was reported here today that such a thing would have been accomplished if another doctor could have been secured to sign the proper papers. One of the physicians who was called in the girl's case balked when asked to sign a paper stating that she was insane, according to information received here today.

Paine is in charge of $9,000 which is the property of the girl. The bulk of her estate is situated in Connecticut. If she is successful in her court action here, she intends to return to Hartford and reside there with her friends.

Maurice Phinney, the Hyannis journalist and magazine writer, is expected to be a strong witness for Marion, in letters and testimony the girl admitted that she loved him and regretted that she would not "steal what belongs to another."

William A. Morse, attorney for Miss Smith, declares that the girl has returned to meet the petitions against her and laughed when told about the fears her friends have for her safety. He asserted that his client is in no danger and that she would score a legal victory over the "Cape Cod conspirators."

MARSHALL FIGHTS CONTEMPT CHARGES

New York, July 22.—H. Snowden Marshall won a stay in the Federal Court which prevents his removal to Washington on charges of contempt brought by the House of Representatives. This stay was granted by Judge Hand in order that Marshall may appeal from the decision dismissing his writ of habeas corpus and remanding him to the custody of Robert B. Gordon, sergeant-at-arms for the House. The stay holds good until December 1. Meantime he is free on his own recognizance.

ATTACK ON GARDNER TO BE INVESTIGATED

Washington, July 22.—The House has authorized the appointment of a special committee to report whether statements contained in a speech by Representative Galloway of Texas, insinuating that Representative Gardner of Massachusetts was interested in munition contracts should be stricken from the record. Galloway will be called upon to explain why his remarks during the House debate on the national defence bill should not be expunged.

BOSTON MAN DIES AT OLD ORCHARD

Old Orchard, Me., July 22.—Wallace Goodrich of No. 6 Ashford court, Allston, Mass., who has been Summering here, dropped dead of heart trouble in a cottage at Surfside, in this town. Mr. Goodrich, who was sixty-four years of age, was a native of Canaan, Me., and had been suffering from heart trouble for some years. He was engaged as a purchasing agent for a Boston firm. He is survived by Mrs. Goodrich.

IT IS HARD TO BE A PRINCESS

Mrs. William B. Leeds, one of America's richest widows, has discovered this since her engagement to Prince Christophorus of Greece was announced. The unusual obstacles in the way of her marriage to him are explained in tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN.

CHRISTOPHER G. MURPHY,

Dorchester boy who was on Ypser when it was sunk by a German submarine.

Dorchester Boy on Vessel Sunk by a Submarine

Richard Meligan, reported as being on the Ypser, that was sunk by a German submarine, turned out to be no other than Christopher G. Murphy of Dorchester, nineteen years old, of No. 4 Glover place, in the Meeting House Hill section of Dorchester, a graduate of the Mather School and one time student at Mechanic Arts School. He was very well known in the younger set of Dorchester and very popular, taking an active interest in athletics in the district.

Young Murphy, being out of a position and being an ambitious lad, left home last January and the last heard from him by his family was that he received employment on an ocean boat running out of Portland, Me., shipping under the name of Richard Meligan, according to his letter.

Two Men Injured When Auto Hits Car in Everett

Silas P. Smith, a member of the State Police, is suffering from severe injuries today while Charles E. Smith of Brookline, a chauffeur, is badly shaken up as a result of a collision between a street car and a limousine in which the two men were riding. The crash occurred at the junction of Pleasant and Linden streets, Everett.

Officer Smith is suffering from cuts of the head, face, body and arms and a wrenched leg. He was hurled through the wind shield of the auto and had a narrow escape from death. His chauffeur was badly shaken up but escaped serious injury.

According to the police the automobile was proceeding through Linden street. The car came along, bound for West Medford, at a rapid rate, and the automobile struck it in the centre. There was a crash, and the compressed air tanks of the car, one of the heavy motor truck type, exploded. The front of the automobile was shattered by the impact.

Officer Smith, with blood streaming from a dozen cuts, was taken into a nearby house. Later he was taken to his Summer home at Point of Pines.

There were few passengers in the car. They were slightly shaken up by the impact.

SCHOONER ASHORE, CUTTER TO RESCUE

New Bedford, July 22.—The United States coast guard tug Acushnet left here for Vineyard Sound to go to the rescue of an unidentified fishing vessel ashore on the rocks, her rudder having been carried away. Two small boats were driven ashore in the harbor during yesterday's gale.

PARALYSIS NOW SPREADING IN BAY STATE

The Massachusetts health authorities are today conducting a great battle to prevent the spread of infantile paralysis which has been making big inroads here. One death and nine new cases have been reported by the State Health Department. Quick action by the various municipal health departments is being urged to prevent an epidemic.

The death was that of a twenty-months-old infant of a Portuguese family in Fairhaven, near New Bedford.

The dreaded plague has also been discovered at the St. Peter's Orphanage in Lowell. The orphanage has 116 inmates. Francis McCarthy, five, has been removed from the institution suffering from infantile paralysis. Those in charge of the place stated today that no children have been admitted lately from localities where the plague has been discovered.

CHILDREN ARE EXAMINED.

All of the children of the orphanage have been examined. With the exception of McCarthy, none of them showed any symptoms of the disease.

The disease is doing the most damage in the western part of the State. North Adams and Westfield have been affected the most, and each has a number of cases of infantile paralysis.

The suggestion has been made that pedlers and hawkers may be spreading infantile paralysis through Western Massachusetts and that, by revoking their licenses, the further spread of the disease might be prevented.

In a letter received by Thure Hanson, State commissioner of weights and measures Sanborn G. Tenney, an authority on Williamstown, states that fruit vendors starting from North Adams pass through all districts and their fruit more or less exposed to contagion and that the flies which cluster around the carts may be active carriers of the disease.

POWER WITH STATE BOARDS.

In commenting on this suggestion, Commissioner Hanson explained that the city and town boards of health have full power, under the law, to prohibit the entry of itinerant vendors, pedlers or hawkers in order to guard against the spread of contagious diseases.

Among cases reported to the State authorities were:

North Adams—Helen Tarsq and Veronica Tarsq, Mill street.

Malden—Julius Shick, Maplewood street.

Cambridge—Thomas Brandgolica, Prospect street.

Middleboro—Georgena Card, East Main street.

Palmer—Bruce Chisholm, boarding house, wire mill.

Woburn—Henry Anderson, Eastern avenue.

Infantile paralysis was discovered in Woburn at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Anderson, Eastern avenue, when their seven-year-old son developed paralysis in the right leg.

ELEVATED BUYS NEW TYPE OF CAR

A hundred surface cars, that can be run singly or coupled into trains, with side doors of up-to-date steel and forty-two new elevated cars with wider doors, have been ordered by the Boston Elevated, at an expense of $1,500,000.

The surface cars are of a new type called "multiple unit." A number may be hooked into a train controlled by one motorman. These cars are to be mainly used in the tunnel and at East Boston.

The forty-two Elevated cars will resemble those now used on the Elevated structure, only their centre doors will be forty-five inches wide instead of forty and their end doors will be forty-three inches wide instead of thirty-three, as now used.

ARREST MAN WITH LOADED REVOLVER

James O'Connor, sixty-six years old, of No. 8 Sharon street, South End, was arrested today by Patrolmen D. J. and Timothy Kelliher of the East Dedham Street Station at No. 16 Garland street after he had attacked the landlord of the house with a loaded revolver and a blackjack, according to the police. O'Connor put up a stiff fight when the two officers arrested him, drew his and drew his gun on them. He was overpowered, however, and taken to the station house. When searched the blackjack was found in his clothing. He was booked on the charge of carrying a loaded revolver.

TWO FISHERMEN LOST ON BANKS

Portland, Me., July 22.—When the Gloucester fishing schooner Elsie arrived here, her flag at half-mast, Captain Carl Olesam reported that two members of the crew, Frank Spinney, twenty, and Anthony Amerio, twenty-six, were lost at sea. The men put off in a dory July 12, when 100 miles off Quero banks. A search of two days failed to find any trace of them. Both were natives of Tusket, N. S., and had sailed out of Gloucester a number of years.

SEIZE TWO TONS OF SAUSAGES

Providence, July 22.—William J. Bean, inspector of provisions, condemned a shipment of more than two tons of sausages, consigned to a Providence provision supply house. The seizure was made at the New Haven railroad's Canal street freight house. Mr. Bean said the sausages were unfit for human consumption, due apparently to delay in transportation between here and Chicago, from which city they were shipped.

Y. BRITT SCORES BIG HIT

Outweighed Nine Pounds by Howard McRae, New Bedford Boxer Wins in Romp in C. A. C. Ring.

By RINGSIDE.

Young Britt of New Bedford, weighing 121 pounds, proved the complete superiority over Howard McRae of Cambridge, an alleged featherweight, whose weight was announced at 130 pounds, in the feature event on last night's card at the Commercial A. C.

Despite the club's several announcements during the week, the rival boxers did not make weight in the ring. For all that, and despite the fact that McRae had such a big pull in the weights and was installed a 10-to-9 betting favorite, Young Britt made every post a winning one, as they say on the turf, and well merited the decision he received from Referee Jack Sheehan.

It was an interesting, active bout, but from twelve rounds to ten at the last minute. Britt made his first Boston appearance last night. He looked good; awfully good. He's a great pacemaker, a skilled combination boxer-fighter, possesses a good pair of hands and showed himself to be a tidy little general.

BRITT PROMISES WELL.

Britt was entirely too fast for McRae. What's more, his punches had the most steam behind them. McRae has never been anything else but a fast, tidy boxer. He's been considered a good one and of the improving stripe, too. But in Young Britt, and that despite the fact he had nine pounds the better of the weight question, he met his master and ran a "hang-up" second.

Young Britt outscored McRae most of the way. He jabbed "Mac" with his left and crossed stubbornly with his right. What's more, he was always making the pace. All that can be said of McRae is that he flashed in spots and did his best. He was never in much danger of being stored away, though his knees rocked a couple of times.

The New Bedford boy is a rare good prospect, a legitimate featherweight and the Boston boxing fans want to see more of him.

CLUB DRAWS USUAL JAM.

The show drew its customary big house. All the bouts pleased well enough and Referee Sheehan's work was a distinct feature.

The semi-final was short and sweet. Johnny Mealey was bent on shining against "Bill" Casey, but the Cambridge battler ran into a stiff "solar-plexus" wallop early in the first round. That's all.

There was the usual juggling in the prelims. Shamus O'Brien and Louis Leonard went six rounds to a draw, as did Al Gerard outstepped "Red" Kelly in a set-to of like dimensions.

TWO PITCHERS FOR CAL.

Pittsburgh, July 22.—Pitchers Coffman and Carpenter of the Chillicothe, Ohio State League club, which disbanded Thursday, have been signed by the Pirates.

LAST NIGHT IN THE RING.

New York, July 22.—"Battling Levinsky" decisively whipped George Ashe of Philadelphia in a six-round bout at the Fat Rockaway Club. Ashe was a target for the battler, and it was surprising he stayed the rounds.

New York, July 22.—Nero Chisk, the negro middleweight, was to mark for Jack Kurtz at the Harlem Sporting Club.

New York, July 22.—"Kid" Bacon outpointed Young Hubby all the way in their 10-round bout at the Prospect Sporting Club.

Philadelphia, July 22.—"Young Hank" McGovern had little difficulty outpointing Joe Tyra in a 6-round bout at the Camden A. C.

Welsh-White Bout Off Plan to Box Labor Day

By SAM P. HALL.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 22.—New York tried to dictate to Minneapolis and Minneapolis tried to dictate to New York and neither one of these wellknown cities got away with it. Chicago was involved in the argument, but the gentleman representing that city was too smart to get into the muss.

As a result of the ridiculous squabble over a point that has bobbed up in many quarters between boys who box for a living, the fourth scheduled ten-round meeting between Charley White and Freddie Welsh, the title-holder, scheduled for last night, did not take place.

The bone of contention was the referee and the Minneapolis promoters. Harry Sherman and Harry Pollok, manager of Welsh, did the screaming. Harry Pollok, manager of Welsh, did the scrapping.

There was a question in Minneapolis last night about who was looking for the "out."

Some say that Pollok was glad to get out of the match, as he found on his arrival here that Welsh was in wonderful shape and ready to make a desperate attempt to stop the Champion and outstepped the title.

Others allege that Sherman, seeing there was going to be a deficit in the box office because of the heat, was tickled to death to start a row with Pollok that would result in the cancellation of the match.

Lewis and White were ready to box for nothing, so that eliminates them.

There is one party who is a hero in Minneapolis and his name is "Billy" Roke. He is the man the people in this city insisted on as referee and "Billy" is the individual Promoter Sherman and Boxing Commissioner Seibertich and should referee or there would be no fight.

Pollok had reason to believe that Roke had undue influence with Sherman and Seiberlich and that for some reason or other he was prejudiced against Welsh. It seems that Ed W. Smith, of Chicago originally, was agreed upon as the official, but that Pollok put the knock in and Smith was put aside on the ground he was an outside referee. He should free.

Here is one item of real fighting news: Both White and Welsh were ready for a terrific struggle. We never have seen Welsh looking better than he did. White was in the finest fettle of his career.

Welsh is barred in Minnesota as a result of the trouble. Commissioner Seibertich says the Britisher will not box here as long as he is in power. Welsh was barred from Wisconsin some time ago for four months. This puts the Champion in a bad way in the Middle West.

Pollok was sued for $250 expenses advanced to him and $610 for the club's expenses by Jack Elliott, Sherman's partner. The belongings of Pollok and Welsh were attached.

Fight Crowd Due to Talk It Over Today in Chicago

CHICAGO, July 22.—Promoter Harry Sherman, Harry Pollok, Nate Lewis and all others interested in the proposed lightweight championship battle between Freddie Welsh and Charley White, as stipulations which Minneapolis refused putting on last night because the rival managers could not agree upon the referee, are expected here today to complete their wrangle.

Sherman, it is reported from Minneapolis, is anxious to go through with the match on Labor Day. He claims he has his choice of several locations which should prove lucrative.

RACES IN LIPTON SERIES

Marblehead, July 22.—After two weeks of inactivity, yacht racing will be resumed here this afternoon, when the Corinthian Yacht Club holds its regatta, the results of which will count for the Sir Thomas Lipton Cup and the North Shore Championships. The North Shore racers were in action off Manchester-by-the-Sea one week ago today in a regatta which was under the auspices of the Manchester Yacht Club.

Regardless of the Boston Yacht Club cruise to the eastward, there will be practically a full quota of boats in this afternoon's races.

In the battle for the Sir Thomas Lipton Cup of the "P" boats, the Ahmeek, which is owned and sailed by Charles Francis Adams, 2d, won her second race of the season last week and took a big jump up the standing. Although touted as the fastest boat in the class during the early weeks of the season, the former Canadian boat has failed to live up to her reputation but with last Saturday's win tucked away, one may begin to display the form that her boosters claim for her.

BERNICE DROPS.

By finishing third in the Manchester race last week, the Bernice which is leading the class dropped a number of points, as did the Hayseed II and Wanaka II. It is very probable that the Nutmeg III and Wanaka II will not start this afternoon in the "P" Class, as these boats are with the Boston Yacht Club fleet in Maine waters, but the remaining seven boats will be on the job and giving their usual keen battle for high honors.

The Vera III and Mildred IV will be absent from the Bar Harbor class today and on form there should be nothing to this race but the Flight. Captain Santry did not start his Flight last week at Manchester but his fast Bar Harbor sloop will be seen in action in every race from now until the close of the season, for the Flight has a fine opportunity to win another championship, and Captain Santry is out to score as many points as possible from now on.

POPULAR WIN.

The victory of Leenane, last Saturday in the Bar Harbor class, although a surprise, was a popular one. The Connolly sloop simply ran away from her two competitors the Vera III and the Zara. The victory of the Leenane and the fact that the Vera III was the third boat at the finish put the Flight and the Vera III practically tied for third place. The Vera III got away to a wonderful start this season, winning four straight races but the Flight scored a victory over the Lundberg boat two weeks ago and then the win of the Leenane pulled the Vera III down until she is now leading the Flight by only a fraction of one per cent.

Two-Mile Run Is Big Event on R.A.A. Card

The amateur track and field sports of the Roslindale A. A. at Pierce Field, Roslindale, this afternoon, starting at 2 o'clock, have attracted the entries of the strength of the B. A. A., Irish-American A. A., Dorchester A. C., Dorchester Club and the additional clubs of Greater Boston.

George V. Brown of the B. A. A. will act as referee, and Hugh C. McGrath will serve as starter. Mayor James M. Curley will present the prizes to the winners, and including among these will be cups presented by former Congressmen Peters and Gardner, W. J. Fallen and J. B. Fennon, former Harvard athletes.

The feature event will be the two-mile run, in which A. G. Colby of the B. A. A., the New England A. A. U. indoor champion, and Harold Weeks of the Irish-American A. C., the New England five-mile champion, will meet.

Prominent athletes of the B. A. A. entered are J. Le Fave, W. H. Brandt, E. Phillips, M. A. Morrissey, R. Z. Nelson, Edward Gober, J. Nelson, Jr., J. M. Burke, H. A. Carter, T. J. Halpin, J. J. Donnelley, C. W. Lemis, A. R. Plympton, Alan Stanton, W. H. Leavitt, R. W. Bell, P. L. McGrath, C. Gober, L. F. Powell, Jr., R. H. Borrage, J. W. Ryan, Harry Bareiss, Walter Wilson.

The Irish-American A. C. has entered W. Sullivan, William McCormick, John Kelley, H. F. Houghton, George Cochrane, John Lenco, T. F. Macdonald, James Brown, Dana F. Barnhart, Ralph F. Seifert and Charles F. Hurne.

The smaller clubs of New England have entered all their representative athletes and the contest for the point trophy is expected to be keen.

NEW YORK RING TALK.

NEW YORK, July 22.—Joe Welling, The former Chicago lightweight, will be put to a test tonight when he meets Brooklyn's star lightweight, Harry Pinery, at the Broadway Club on the other side of the big bridge.

YOUNG AHEARN and Frank Carbone will entertain the fans at Washington Park, Brooklyn, tonight.

FRANKIE CONIFREY will face Joe Malone at the Olympic Club Monday night. The winner has been promised a match with "Harlem Patsy" Cline.

Westfield Card Assures Gala Day's Sport

Westfield, July 22.—A postponement of the harness sport yesterday was deemed advisable by both the management and the drivers on account of the miserable condition of the track caused by the heavy rain Thursday night.

It is expected that the program in its entirety will be cleared away today, when seven events of $850 each and the free-for-all pace will be run off.

Andy Ashland looks best in the 2:14 pace, although the "rail-birds" have it that Hopeful Boy, owned by Ward, Del., will take Andy's number with his smart trick, Joseph K. S.

Koroni, Carnathan, J. Forbes, Audrey Grey and Dr. Kilbourne are five good steppers which should make the 2:15 trot an interesting race.

Zombro Rex and Jess G. look to have the 3:20 trot between them.

FOUR-MILE RELAY TO FEATURE GAMES

A four-mile relay race between the B. A. A. and the Irish-American A. C. will be one of the star events at the track meet and field day to be held at the Readville race track by the Hyde Park Aerie of Eagles, Saturday, August 3.

The meet, which promises to be the biggest event of its kind held this season around Greater Boston, will bring together many of the star athletes of New England. In addition to the relay race there will also be 220-yard run, 440, 880, broad jump, high jump shotput, pole vault, 100-yard dash and hurdle races. The games will be under the direction of George Brown of the B. A. A.

Squantum Y. C. Regatta On Today

All the Y. R. U. boats will be at Squantum this afternoon, when the Squantum Yacht Club holds an open regatta. The interest in racing among the Y. R. U. boats is especially keen this season and the fight for honors in every class is close.

Although Walter Keyes started off last week with the Boston Yacht Club for the cruise on his Tyro, he left the fleet during the week and the champion Class A sloop has been back at her moorings off Stony Beach, Hull, for the last three days and will start this afternoon. The Areyto and Tyro are having a great tussle for the championship and the failure of either of the boats to start in any of the coming regattas might cost them the championship. Therefore it was not surprising to the followers of the game when the Tyro was seen back in Hull Bay.

Charlie Benton should have things very easy this afternoon, for with the Sally VII down in Maine, his Tern should walk away from all other boats in the Bonder Class.

Rowing Regatta to Settle the Lynn Title

The annual Peoples regatta held under the auspices of the City of Lynn will start this afternoon on Lynn Harbor at 1:30 o'clock.

The opening races will be between the Farragut Club eight and the West Lynn crew to determine which craft will represent the city in the national championships in Duluth, next month. The Farraguts are being coached by Jack Manning, the freshman coach at Harvard, and have already won one leg on the trip having defeated the West Lynn eight already by eight lengths.

This race will be over a straight away course of a mile and a half with Dr. Magrath, the Boston Medical Examiner, acting as special referee. Although the Farraguts have lost the services of Trayers, their star No. 2 oar, who is suffering with boils, Clancy a member of the eight last year, has been secured to row and Coach Manning does not fear for the result. There will be a special fours-oared race between the Farragut and the St. Alphonsus crew of Roxbury and the junior eights from both organizations will also meet. The Riversides of Cambridge have entered a combin in the senior races opposing St. Alphonsus. There will be several other races during the afternoon's regatta. James F. Fox will act as referee in the majority of the races.

NEW 3-HEAT RECORD HUNG UP BY PACERS

Cleveland, July 22.—Single G., an Indiana stallion driven by Gossill, won the free-for-all pace in the fastest three-heat race ever paded over the North Randall track. The heavily-pigged favorite, Russell Boy, took the first heat in 2:09¼, but the Hoosier horse annexed the next two in 2:09¾ and 2:09¼, respectively.

All four favorites were beaten. Donna Clay won the 2:18 trot, Castaway landed the 2:18 pace and Jess Sahlfield frat in the 2:24 trot.

St. Louis Likes Braves Club Is Showing Class

St. Louis, July 22.—Where on the first trip West of the Eastern clubs in the National League the Giants looked to be the best club in the pennant race, the pick in this neighborhood has changed to the Boston Braves. With that brilliant defence a ball club that has pitchers, plenty of them, both right-handers and left-handers, and a combination of hard and trickey hitters, the Braves present the strongest front in the East.

Against the Cardinals the 1914 champions have played pennant ball. It is pennant ball because they are out there hustling all the way.

A perfect example was presented yesterday when the Braves snatched a game from the locals that was ready to go into the defeat column. Instead of a 5-3 defeat it was a 4-3 victory, and why?

Well, because those Braves refused to give up. Like the Giants, they possess the swatting power, but New York is weak in pitching, unless Harry Salles saves the day.

The Phillies boast of only Alexander, and are a club not nearly as strong defensively as the Braves. The Dodgers are weak at short and second and need the hitting from the outfield.

WAS TROJAN'S BIRTHDAY.

With the Braves it is that step of perfection, and they have Evers playing at top speed. On his thirty-third birthday, which was yesterday, the Trojan poled a single that won the ball game. It was a 2-3 score in the eighth, with Maranville on third when the Keyone King shot a single to center and the Rabbit scored the winning run.

It is this reserve strength that is going to make the Braves a dangerous factor down the stretch. It will be remembered that it was about this time of the season when they started their famous drive two years ago, jumping from eighth place to the top.

Stallings has nursed his players along carefully. They have not been pushed and they are not "track-sore." With Evers in condition the infield is perfect and Sherwood Magee is in the game, going on high, where the Braves missed his attack for almost a month.

HUGHES TO THE RESCUE.

In yesterday's game Tom Hughes rescued George Tyler. Hughes went to the hill in the eighth inning and held the 4-3 lead across the wire. In the ninth, with one out, Gonsales walked, but two pinch hitters were retired. It is this sight pitching that helps Dr. Stallings machine, and it was brilliant pitching by Tyler, James and Rudolph that won the flag in 1914.

In yesterday's game Rogers Hornsby, the twenty-year-old Texas boy, who is regarded as the find of the season, hit one that was probably the longest drive ever made on Robinson Field.

The ball sailed far over Snodgrass' head and hit the center field fence on the first bound. The wall back of Snodgrass is some 450 feet from home plate.

Tyler also hit one over the right-field fence, but this is only 310 feet from the home plate.

When Hornsby went up in the eighth the three outfielders went back and Mages saved a triple by running to the fences for a great catch.

The Braves ended the game in the eighth. Tyler tied things up by poling one into the bleachers. Maranville laced a three-bagger to far left, and counted on Evers' timely single.

The Braves have two more games here, and tomorrow night leave for home. It has been a long but a prosperous trip for Stallings' players. At home they are confident that they will pass the Dodgers and get into the lead and stay there.

Ragan and Doak are down to hurl today.

A Ball Game in Yon Yonson's Fair Land

The following communication, which was received by the AMERICAN'S Sporting Editor this morning, demonstrates that baseball is quite a foothold in Europe. This letter describes a game played in Sweden and is printed as received.

Vaxtera, 2 July-16.

Dear Sirs:

The first baseball game played between two Sweedish teams was played here today between Gotenburg-Vasteras. The constitution of the game was: Gotenburg 16, Vasteras 12 rounds. The Vasteras team was the same team who played against the Americans, 1913, in Stockholm, and got trimed, 9-2.

PRAISE FOR "CHICK" FROM ENGLAND

Chicago, July 22.—Charles (Chick) Evans, who recently won the national open golf championship at Minneapolis, today exhibited a note from Lord Northcliffe, editor of the London Times, congratulating him on his victory. The English editor wrote:

"I cannot tell you with what pleasure the news of your victory was received in England. Some of us who are over-fifty still play golf, and I happened to be at a club when the news came of your splendid win. The delighted had the open championship been won by an Englishman over fighting age.

"Your bearing and conduct at Sandwich two years ago were recalled by all. Your extreme good temper in face of the extraordinary luck against you made a marked impression."

Evans was a contender for the English championship at Sandwich two years ago.

SOUSA COMPETES IN PROVIDENCE SHOOT

Providence, July 22.—The high amateurs in the first day's shooting of the Rhode Island State trap shooting championship on the grounds of the Providence Gun Club at Cranston, were J. Clark, Jr., of Worcester and W. J. Weaver of this city, each of whom broke 140 out of a possible 150 clay pigeons. J. E. Fanning was high professional, with 133.

Among the participants was John Philip Sousa, the bandmaster and composer.

Gaelic Football and Hurling on the Card

Followers of Gaelic football and hurling and lovers of long-distance running will await with interest the outcome of the contests to be waged at the South End Grounds this afternoon, when the postponed field day of Division 72, A. O. H., will be held.

The football games between Galway and Kerry and Cork and Tipperary, the latter for the New England championship, and the hurling games between the Wolfe Tones of South Boston and the Young Irelands of Cambridge and the Shamrocks and Redmonds has aroused the sporting blood of every student of these ancient, but strenuous pastimes.

The twelve-mile amateur race, with Henigan, Roth, Horne, Davis, Merchant, Lilley, St. Paul and Costarakis bids fair to be productive of some excellent racing and fast time and the rivalry between the runners is so intense that the result will be in doubt until the finish line is crossed. A new New England record for the distances is generally expected.

Water Carnival for Orient Heights

Plans are now under way for a water carnival at Orient Heights August 25, under the auspices of the Orient Heights Improvement Association.

John N. L. Noyes has been elected chairman of the committee of arrangements and elaborate plans have been outlined for a series of events that will equal those given at Marblehead and other resorts in the declining Summer days.

At a recent meeting of the association the organization voted to award prizes to the best decorated yacht, motor boat, tender and canoe, and it was also arranged to give the owner of the best decorated residence on the shore a valuable prize.

In addition to the regular events there will be swimming and other aquatic features. Prior to the band concert there will be a parade of yachts and other boats representing the clubs of Winthrop and East Boston.

RING REMARKS.

Eddie Mack has added Harry Price, the New York boxer, a tiny little stepper, according to all reports, to his stable.

A Matty Baldwin-Harry Carlson bout is being talked about. The C. A. C. is after the booking.

Al Lippe, the well-known New York manager whose chief grievance are Jeff Smith, the Bayonne, N. J. middleweight, and Frankie Brown, the New York bantam, saw the A. C. bouts last night. He is en route for Maine on a fishing trip.

"Battling Joe" Carroll of Lawrence writes the AMERICAN, stating that he is desirous of meeting Johnny Noonan, Howard McRae or any of the other Greater Boston 126-130 pounders.

Manager Mish Murray of the Armory A. A. announces that interest is low in next Tuesday night's ten-round bout between Jack Britton and Johnny Griffiths at the Arena. It smacks of a fast, classy set-to and a big house.

'BUSHER' FOR WHITE SOX

Muscatine, Iowa, July 22.—Robert Schroeder, first baseman for the local Central Association team, was sold today to the Chicago White Sox. It looked as though Wright was doomed.

Going to the twenty-second hole Hicks, after a long drive which lodged in the rough to the left, recovered well enough to go over the green on his next. Wright played a beauty down the fairway.

It looked as though the Watertown boy would again win, but his second was also in the rough. Hicks played his third seven feet this side of the hole and Wright, on his third, was nine feet away. Wright missed his putt; Hicks holed his, and the match went to Hicks by one up.

This defeat of Wright will not hurt him by any means, for he has come along so fast a dfeat once in a while will help him more than it will hurt.

Jesse Guilford, the other winner in the semi-final round, did not have to play his best to win from John B. Hylan of the Vesper Club. Hylan was defeated 8 and 6.

Wright Stars on Links Watch Guilford Today

Two nerve-racking golf matches were played in the third and semi-final rounds of the Massachusetts amateur championship at the Wollaston Golf Club, Montclair, and one player—a champion at that, despite his youthful appearance—figured in both contests.

That clever individual was Freddie Wright, the State junior champion and a member of the Scarboro Golf Club, Franklin Park.

Wright met Larry Paton, the Homestead golfer, in the third round of match play. Wright, after being one down at the turn and two down at the fourteenth hole, managed to square the match at the seventeenth. He lost the home hole after allcing his second shot into the rough and losing the ball.

With the match all square, Paton and Wright started out to win as quickly as possible, but it was not until the twenty-second hole had been played that Wright turned the trick.

"HOO-DOO" PURSUES WRIGHT.

This contest would have been enough for any ordinary golfer to play and win, but Wright had his "hoodoo" following him when he met Trafford Hicks, the well-known hockey player, in the semi-final match.

Wright was two up with nine holes had been played, and, after playing the twelfth, was leading by the same margin. Hicks won the thirteenth and fourteenth, squaring the match. Driving into a bunker cost Wright the sixteenth. He squared matters by winning the eighteenth.

Then the gallery started for the extra hole, or holes. Wright and Hicks halved the first three. Hicks had a great chance to win the first extra hole, but failed. Wright would have won the contest at the second extra hole, for he had only a short putt to run down, but Hicks laid him a full stymie. At the third extra hole Wright had a short putt for a win, and again played an important part in favor of Hicks.

HICKS OVERRUNS HOLE.

The latter was from thirty to thirty-five feet from the hole. There was a chance for him to run down this putt, but he over-ran and the ball stopped rolling about eight inches in front of Wright's ball, leaving him a half-stymie to negotiate. Wright tried and missed. With these "breaks"

'A Girl and a Man

The Two Admirers of Agnes Meet and Philip Resorts to a Ruse

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER IX.

Copyright, 1916, Star Company.

Philip Hale paused in the doorway, irresolute, a little puzzled frown drawing his dark brows together. Then, as Agnes arose to greet him, he came forward.

"Good evening!" he said, boyishly. "I hope I'm not butting in!"

He took the girl's outstretched hand and held it until she drew it away, and turned to introduce him to Randolph Pickens.

"Pleased to make your acquaintance," that gentleman murmured, rising.

Neither man offered to shake hands, and for an instant they glared at each other. They suggested irresistibly to the mind of the girl the attitude of two strange dogs, each resenting the other's appearance.

"I suppose you are one of Miss Morley's classmates at school?" Philip said carelessly, as he took a chair.

"No, I am not," Mr. Pickens answered shortly."

"He was my teacher," Agnes explained, "while I was at school."

"While you were at school?" Philip repeated. "Aren't you there still?"

"No," the other man interposed triumphantly. "Miss Morley has accepted a position."

"I will tell you about it some other time, Phil," the girl broke in before Mr. Pickens could go further in his explanation. "I have a position—a very good one—and I want to talk to you about it sometime."

"So have I," the boy laughed. "We'll have an experience meeting. When do you begin?"

"I started in today," she replied. "But," she added, "I am too tired to want to talk about it now."

THREE IS A CROWD

For a half-hour the three chatted together. That is, Phillip and Agnes talked. While Mr. Pickens, who had sunk back in his chair, gazed gloomily at the gas-light and responded only to questions aimed directly at him.

Several times he cast longing glances at the table on the other side of the room where reposed his dearly-bought Panama—the Panama—the Panama he had purchased to make brave his appearance for this call. Too shy to join in the conversation, too bored to care to remain longer, he yearned to take up his hat and make his departure.

One thing interfered with his doing this. It was a recollection that he was a Southerner in a land of Northern barbarians. Upon his narrow shoulders he felt rested the responsibility of upholding the gallantry of the Southland.

Therefore he was determined to remain until the man in whom he recognized a rival should depart. So he stayed, shrinking into his chair, jaws aching and pale eyes watering from suppressed yawns—a martyr to Southern chivalry.

Could he have read the minds of his two companions he would doubtless have fled precipitately. Both Philip and Agnes had much to tell each other, and neither desired to discuss these problems in the presence of a third person.

At last Philip arose.

"You are tired," he said to Agnes. "And we are boring you to death. It is time you went to bed, and I am going home and let you get some rest."

"Please stay for a little longer at least," the girl begged. "It is not late."

"No," he insisted. "I am going." "Mr. Pickens, are you going up or down town?"

"Downtown," that gentleman replied, rising and seizing his hat.

"Well, we'll walk over as far as the avenue together, anyway," Hale proposed. "Good night, Miss Morley. Be good and go to bed soon."

Mr. Pickens bowed low over his hostess' hand.

"I would like to come again some time if I may," he ventured. "I don't know so many folks here in the city."

AN INVITATION

"Certainly," Agnes replied, touched by his wistful tone. "Come by all means, Mr. Pickens."

A moment later the door slammed and they were both gone.

"I wonder why Phil left so early?" the girl mused, as she returned to the parlor to turn out the gas.

Propped up against a book on the table she found the answer to her question. On the back of an old envelope were scribbled these words:

"I have a lot of things to talk to you about. I am going to shake Mr. Chickens—or whatever his name is—and then come back. Don't you dare to be too tired to see me!"

Agnes laughed aloud at the clever manner in which the boy had carried out his plan of getting rid of the unfortunate caller. Then she ran to the window and peered out.

A tall, lank figure and a shorter, sturdier one were standing under the arc light that swung on the corner of the avenue. A minute later a car came along and Mr. Pickens boarded it. Philip came strolling back up the street, whistling gayly.

"It worked, didn't it?" he asked with a happy laugh, when he had once more entered the Morley apartment. "I just had to see you alone tonight, and diplomacy was better than force in getting rid of that queer Southern customer."

"You ought to be ashamed," Agnes told him, smiling in contradiction of her words.

"I'm not!" he declared. "I had a talk with father today, Agnes, and he has promised to take me into the firm when I have finished college. Isn't that corking? That is, he says he will do it if I decide that I want to go into business after working this summer in his office. So he's going to give me a three months' job there. What do you look so queer for?"

"Oh, nothing." Agnes said with a strained laugh. "Only your father has given me a job in his office, too. I started in today."

(To Be Continued).

America's richest widow, Mrs. Leeds, may become a Princess of Greece if certain unusual obstacles can be overcome. Love is under a heavy handicap in this romance, which is related in interesting detail in tomorrow's Boston Sunday AMERICAN.

Ripping

"And what did you learn at school today?"

"Oh, all about the myths and goddesses and things."

"And what about them?"

"I forgot them—all but Ceres."

"And who was she?"

"Oh, she was the goddess of dressmaking."

"Why, how in the world——"

"Well, teacher said she was the goddess of ripping and sewing."

A New and Interesting Series

By GRACE DARLING

Grace Darling, the Talented Newspaper Writer and Actress, Will Be Seen Soon in an Absorbing New Film, "BEATRICE FAIRFAX." She Has Been Engaged to Write a New Series for AMERICAN Readers. This Is the First of the Series

Here are a few recent photographs of Miss Darling. It is easy to see from these pictures that she is entitled to her fame as one of the most charming of film favorites.

Miss Darling has written for the AMERICAN a previous series of articles on advice to girls. She has also on occasions edited the Beatrice Fairfax column in Miss Fairfax's absence.

Do you remember the song that we were all singing a year or two ago in which the refrain was: "I don't know where I'm going, but I'm on my way"?

I often think that song is the life-size portrait of the average girl. She doesn't know where she's going, but she's on her way. She doesn't know what she wants to be or what she wants to do. She has no definite goal in sight, but the days and the years are going by. She's on her way to somewhere.

That's why so many girls take the wrong turn of the road. That's why so many girls are miserable instead of happy. That's why so many girls are failures instead of successes, for almost every mother's daughter of us can do anything we like if we just concentrate on the one subject and stick to it.

But we don't. We are futile. We are aimless. We go at life without any plans and specifications, and so it's no wonder that we so often muddle it. We're on our way, but we haven't bought a journey-ticket to the end of the journey. We just pay as we go, because we are always expecting to get off at the next stopping place, or turn back, or go in some other direction.

Take even such a vital matter as a girl's character.

A VITAL MATTER

Do you ever stop to think how often the difference between a girl doing right and wrong is determined by chance and not by principle? Not one girl in a million starts out with the fixed idea of being bad, and becoming what we call in the movies a "mirror" or a "vampire." If she did she would turn out a better siren or vampire job, and get something out of it except shame, and tears, and heartbreak.

No, the girls who go wrong are nearly always just girls who are on their way, but didn't know where they were going, and at some point they drifted off of the straight and narrow way into the primrose path that leads down to perdition for women. But they didn't start out with any intention in the world of going there.

I see a lot of these little girls with too few clothes on and too much paint on sitting around in the lobbies of hotels waiting for men to come along and pick an acquaintance with them and ask them to lunch.

I see them drinking cocktails and smoking cigarettes in cafes. I see them dancing with strangers at the tea dances in giddy restaurants. I see them joy-riding in automobiles, and skylarking with men who are not in their class of society, and who are just amusing themselves with these little sillies.

These girls start out meaning to do no harm. They are girls who lead drab, dull lives at home, and they say to themselves pleasure and excitement. They just want to have a little fun and do some of the things the rich girls do. They don't know it, but—they are on their way, and they don't know where they are going. That's the pity of it.

ANOTHER DANGER

And there's the girl, the warm-hearted, sympathetic, understanding girl, who gets herself entangled in an affair with a married man. He tells her a sad story about a cold and callous wife and a starved heart, and an unhappy home, and that she's the only woman who ever really comprehended his inner nature or answered the longings of his soul, and but for her he would go to perdition, etc., etc.

And she, poor, little ruddeless boat, lets herself be swept out on the sea of unconventional living on the high tides of love and passion. She doesn't know where she's going, but she's on her way, as is every other girl who gets into love affairs with men who can't offer a wedding ring along with their vows and kisses.

So I ask all girls to stop right in their tracks where they are. Let's take our bearings and try to find out which way we are going. And if we are headed the wrong way, let's scramble back as quickly as we can into the broad highway, for we are all on our way, and by and by we are bound to arrive. For every road leads to somewhere.

Good Housekeeping Recipes

Good food properly cooked goes far toward insuring health and long years. As much depends on the cooking, however, as on the food itself. The following recipes have been tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute, conducted by GOOD HOUSEKEEPING, and are republished here by special arrangement with that publication, the Nation's Greatest Home Magazine.

All measurements are level, standard half-pint measuring cups, tablespoons, and teaspoons being used. Sixteen level tablespoonfuls equal a half-pint. Quantities are sufficient for six people unless otherwise stated. Flour is sifted once before measuring.

Mixed Vegetable-Egg Salad

One cupful shredded string beans, 1 cupful peas, 1 cupful shredded cucumber, ½ cupful sliced radishes, watercress, lettuce heart, 4 hard-boiled eggs, radish-roses and parsley.

Mix together the peas, beans, cucumber and sliced radishes and let stand in a cold place for thirty minutes to marinate in French dressing. Halve the hard-boiled eggs lengthwise, cut off the lower ends so that they will stand upright, and dip each one in a little tart lemon jelly; have the salad plate very cold and arrange these egg-halves in a circle. They should stick at once if the jelly mixture contains enough gelatin. Fill in with the vegetable mixture, top with a lettuce-heart, and garnish with parsley and radish-roses. Pass mayonnaise dressing.

Baked Bananas With Bacon

Six bananas, quarter cupful water, six strips of bacon. Peel bananas, cut in halves lengthwise, and place in a baking-dish with the water. Bake for thirteen minutes in a hot oven. Cut the bacon in inch-strips, place it on the bananas, return it to the oven, and bake until bacon is crisp. Garnish with parsley.

Preferred the Peacock

The first woman ever to run a sewing-machine—Miss Elizabeth Kilbourn, of Winsted, Ct.—has recently died at the age of eighty-six.

Miss Kilbourn was a friend of Elias Howe, the inventor of Howe's sewing machine. She used to repeat Howe's complaints about the world's apathy before his marvelous invention.

"The public is blind to everything new and grand," Howe would say. The public reminds me of Dugald Donald, of Peebles.

"Dugald and a friend toured America and duly reached Niagara Falls. Angus, the friend, was impressed, but Dugald said nothing. He just looked at the falls critically, then yawned, and then refit his pipe.

"'Ain't they grand?' said Angus. 'Ain't they wonderful?'

"'Aye, men, they are,' said Dugald. 'But hoo about the auld peacock at Peebles that has the wooden leg?'"

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

IT IS NOT FAIR TO INTERFERE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

A dear friend, pretty and amiable and twenty-one, is deeply in love with a man of forty. Her relatives cannot understand that she, who could marry a man much younger, should want to marry one so much her senior. She is an orphan, and it is her sister who is against this; and since she has mothered her for years, my friend hates to hurt her. The man is devoted and cannot do enough for her, his only desire being to make her happy.

M. L.

MARRIAGES are more likely to prove happy when there is not such a wide discrepancy in years between the bride and groom. However, this seems to be a case of true love, and I should be tempted to say to the sister that since one never has the absolute certainty of happiness in marriage and generally must compromise a little with one's ideals, here is a case where the required sacrifice is not a dangerous one having to do with weakness of character nor physical unfitness of any sort, and so no outsider—not even a loving sister—has a right to interfere.

INSANE JEALOUSY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

A cousin of my fiancee is soon to be engaged to a young man who used to pay attention to my fiancee before I met her. For some reason my fiancee gave this young man up and he promptly started to court the cousin. He is very friendly whenever he sees my fiancee. I protested against this friendship, but my fiancee does not like to give up seeing her cousin (and this young man who comes to see his friend very often).

I am sure my fiancee loves me, but it makes me unhappy to hear about them or see them, and we both therefore suffer a lot, and quarrel.

T. MORGAN.

YOU are unreasonable, selfish and jealous—a bad combination, don't you think so too, now that I have put it bluntly? Why shouldn't your fiancee see her former friends? If you have so little faith in the woman you love, you will make a nightmare of your marriage.

Our Wonderful World

It has often been asserted that fish never sleep, a sufficiently amazing theory that anything can do violence to the great law of Nature. Brehm, on the contrary, used to contend that fish slept soundly, assuming during that time certain peculiar attitudes which could not be construed otherwise than as attitudes of sleep. The experiments of M. Reinhardt, as detailed in the "Science an Vingtieme Siecle," go far to confirm Brehm's theory. Rapid particular attention to the locals, which he found, assumed as an attitude of repose, during which its functions were less active, and the keenness of its sensorial faculties was diminished. It sleeps at any hour of the day or night, and in doing so it rests on its caudal fins, the body being slightly bent, while the head sometimes leans up against the sides of the aquarium or an aquatic plant. Respiration is weak at these times. Sometimes it slips round on its back and remains in this position absolutely motionless for hours, its sleep being anything but light. Other observers agree in saying that fish sleep.

On December 5th, 1864, a boat crossing the Menai Straits sank with eighty-one passengers on board. The only man who escaped death was a Mr. Hugh Williams. More than a hundred years later, on December 5th, 1780, another vessel with a large number of passengers sank in the same circumstances and in the same place. All the passengers were drowned except one and the facts are proved up to the hilt), a certain Hugh Williams. Again, on December 5th, 1820, a boat laden with thirty souls sank in the same place, the only man escaping death being a Hugh Williams. These coincidences are well known to local antiquarians, and are all recorded by good authorities.

A ship's chronometer is the most wonderful and accurate timekeeper made, for upon its accuracy depends the lives of all on board. So accurate, indeed, is a ship's chronometer that it does not vary a second a day.

An error of only a few seconds may put a captain of a vessel miles out of reckoning at sea, and ruin the ship into great danger. For that reason every ship's timepiece goes through the most thorough tests before it is pronounced perfect.

It is set going in a very hot room and then transferred to a cold one, for it may be used in any part of the world, from the Polar regions to the Tropics, and it must always keep good time.

Most large vessels have three chronometers on board in case of accidents, and whenever a vessel goes into port they are sent ashore and tested to see if they are still accurate. On board ship the chronometer is protected against any cause there is the least motion and the smallest variation of temperature.

When some Canadians were recently digging a new line of trenches to build their line in France, a jar was found in which were 200 silver crowns. The coins, which were in a fine state of preservation, bore dates between 1745 and 1747, a period in which heavy fighting was taking place over the same ground in Flanders. Each member of the working party was given one of the coins, which are now worth $40 each. Some of the party, not knowing their value, parted with them for $35.

The Biography of a Sinner

Rex Escorts Vera to Corinne's Party

By ANN LISLE

Copyright, 1916, International News Service.

I had not quite finished dressing when Rex called from his room: "Veeves, may I come in to have my tie made into one of your most fetching creations?"

"In a minute, Rex. All right, come now," I shouted.

I had an idea that Rex wanted a minute's conversation with me before the three of us set out. I was right.

He came into my room with that sturdy upfling of his splendid head that was one of his most lovable gestures. There was something of the conquering hero in Rex's walk and carriage—something strong and fine—something it seemed as if life must respect and honor.

While I was tying Rex's scarf he put his hand under my chin, tilted up my head and looked into my eyes searchingly. Then he said suddenly, "Veeves, have you seen any chap yet you like better than brother Rex?"

I laughed and kissed him. Then I pushed him away. "Don't muss my neat best dress, Reggie. My commencement gown will have to go to all parties between now and the wedding, so I can save the New York pink taffeta for that."

"Oh, fatherll get you a new frock for Corinne's wedding—he'll want you to look scrumptious. Maybe motherll go up to New York with you and stay over night. Wish I could go." Then loyal, unselfish Rex brought himself back to my affairs with a quick mental jerk: "But you haven't answered me yet Vee. Is there any chap you're—you're interested in?"

COULDN'T BEAR TO HURT

"Not De Witt Hazen—if that's what you mean. I like Norten well enough, but I don't think I've seen the right man yet, Rex. Nobody as fine and strong and kind—and adorable as the gentleman whose tie I have just arranged." I smiled down at me tenderly. He could never bear to hurt any one—never bear to see any one hurt—that caused his own greatest hurt.

"We're a couple of sentimental idiots," he said. "I just didn't want Corinne or that little Barnes cat annoying you—not if I could help it."

With a sudden swift click my consciousness turned to a strange circumstances: "Why hadn't Norten asked to escort me to Corinne's? Was he taking Myra?"

It required every particle of pride I possessed to see me through that evening at Corinne's. But even that might not have sufficed to cover my sensitiveness if I had not been for Rex.

But it hurt almost more than I could endure to see Corinne flaunting her capture of DeWitt Hazen in the face of all Riverdale, and even my brother's presence did not save me from quivering with wounded pride.

As if to prove to me that when you have as much money as you think you can bear you are always called on to bear a little more, Myra Barnes marched in half an hour late with Norton at her side. He looked rather reluctant and sheepish—but that did not convince me that Myra was a foe to be despised.

"Reggie, don't leave me. Help me through—everyone's watching—I see how I take it—Corinne and De Witt, and now Myra and Norton," I gasped.

REX AS A CONSOLER

"Count on Reginald. And remember he's developed on Veeves to be a game little sport and not make a Roman holiday for these people." He gave my hand a squeeze and then suddenly he swung into another tone. He was the very soul of sorrowful.

"This isn't such an easy party for me to go through with Vee—when I see to thinking that Mildred and Willie—never have also like it."

Norton sought me at once and tried to explain that it was not to be best man at the wedding and Myra maid of honor, he had, of course, been compelled to accept Corinne's dictum that he act as Myra's escort. "You know whom I would have brought if I had been free to choose, Vera," he concluded.

I laughed it off lightly, and I clung to the same light tone all through the evening. "Well, I came with the best looking man in the room, anyway."

On the way home Rex and I were alone, for at Corinne's request Len had played escort to one of the girls who lived in stone.

"Rex you were a brick," I said.

"It would have been pretty hard without you."

WILSON LEADING CHILD LABOR BILL FIGHT

By International News Service.

Washington, July 22.—Southern Senators, who announced they would not permit the child labor bill to come to a vote at this session of Congress, are preparing to yield to President Wilson's demand for the redemption of this plank of the Democratic platform before adjournment.

Senator Hardwick of Georgia, author of the opposition, announced that he would object to consideration of the bill. He brought up the subject temporarily in the Senate by calling attention to the statement made by Minority Leader Gallinger that he favored the bill and wanted to vote upon it.

Senator Hardwick declared that was purely a political move. He quoted from Senator Gallinger last December to show that he was opposed to it.

Senator Gallinger said he then doubted the measure's constitutionality and did not know whether it was constitutional, but added that he favored the bill and that the courts should support it.

The steering committee has not fixed the date for the caucus on this bill, but it will be held next week and promises to be stormy.

The opponents of the bill have told the President that they cannot sustain themselves before their constituents if they vote for the bill.

Democratic leaders who have canvassed the Senate are convinced the President's influence assures a vote on the bill before adjournment.

Girls Quit Stogie Making and Price Shoots Skyward

By International News Service.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 22. — Pittsburgh's favorite mouthpiece, the "stogie," is to undergo an increase in price, and while the "jitney" will still be the popular coin offered in exchange for them, it will bring the buyer only a pair of "smoke" where he has been accustomed to receiving three.

The war is blamed, of course. Not that the European armies are using the stogie as a bombs, but, so the girls say, because girls who formerly found making them a lucrative diversion find making war munitions more lucrative.

STOCKS AND INVESTMENTS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were strong in New York at the close, prices being around their highest for the day. Largest gains were by munition issues, and they were the most active class. Trading was quiet most of the time, but the last hour was most active on the close. Largest gains were by Butte & Superior, Maxwell and American Locomotive.

GAINS WERE GENERAL.

Closing gains included Anaconda ⅝, Inspiration ⅛, Kennecott ⅛, Utah Copper 1, American Zinc 1¼, Butte & Superior 2, Chino ⅝, American Can 1⅛, Car & Foundry 1½, American Smelting ¼, American Locomotive 2¾, Baldwin, Colorado Fuel 1, Crucible 1¼, U. S. Steel 1, Martin preferred ½, Goodrich ⅝, Maxwell 3, Studebaker 1⅝, Willys-Overland 1¼, Mexican Petroleum ⅝, Industrial Alcohol ⅛, Westinghouse ⅛, Baltimore & Ohio ⅛, Erie ¼, New Haven ⅛, Reading ⅛, Southern Pacific ¼ and Union Pacific ⅛.

Among declines were Chesapeake & Ohio ¼, Lehigh Valley ⅛, New York Central ½, St. Paul ¼ and Distillers ⅛.

BOSTON MARKET FINISHED FIRM.

The Boston market finished firm, with since the strongest issues. Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies issues ended at declines. Closing gains included Ahmeek 5, Calumet & Arizona ⅝, Quincy ⅜, American Zinc (com), 1½, American Zinc preferred 1¼, Superior 1¾, Boston & Montana ⅛, Maine 1, Boston Elevated 1¼, New York Dock 1, United Fruit ¾.

Among declines were Gulf common ¾, preferred ⅞, Mohawk ⅓ and Old Dominion ⅝.

BOSTON CURB TRADING ACTIVE.

Trading on the Boston Curb was rather active. Prices were irregular. The most active issues were Boston & Montana, and Porcupine Reservation. Closing gains included American Oil 1, Davis Daly Copper 1 cent, East Eagle 1 cent and First National 1-16. Among declines were Boston & Montana 19⅛ cents, Boston Ely 1 cent, Portuna 1 cents and Porcupine Premier 1 cent. Among unchanged issues were Rilla, Shamrock and National Zinc.

NEW YORK BANK STATEMENT.

The New York bank statement as to the actual condition of clearing house members shows that surplus reserves increased $12,575,930 to $108,085,260, while the gain in deposits was almost an increase of $29,364,370 to $103,682,740.

FIRM AT THE OPENING.

Both the New York and Boston markets opened firm, but were dull and narrow. In Boston most of the early trading was in American Zinc, with Gulf common second. Activity was true of the whole session. Attendance at consolidated exchange at Chicago changes was limited. Traders expected that the Democratic campaign would be largely conducted on the tariff issue. Investment was good, but the public showed little interest. Fluctuations ruled small.

Among the Curb issues Clarke Monument Junction Union camp meeting and church conferences, August 20-27; Asbury camp meeting, August 27-September 3.

IDENTIFIES BODY OF DROWNED MAN

Nashua, N. H., July 22.—The body of the man who was drowned in the Merrimack River here last Monday afternoon and was buried unidentified yesterday afternoon, was exhumed today to allow John Leyden of Hinsdale, Mass., to view it. Leyden identified the body as that of his brother-in-law, William E. Leydon, and took charge of it. Leyden was drowned Monday afternoon after telling some boys that he was going swimming in the river. His clothes were found on the bank later and the body found floating in the river Wednesday.

COLONIAL FAMILIES TO JOIN IN PICNIC

Members of colonial families' associations will hold a union picnic Saturday, June 29, at Pine Banks Park, Malden, and it is expected that 500 members will be present. Basket lunches will be opened at 1 o'clock and ice cream and coffee will be served by a committee. A band of fifteen pieces will furnish music and sports will be given. Among the family associations that will be represented are the Dudleys, Chapins, Bass Hills, Smalls, Washburns, Bacons, Barkers and Gavelyns. Dames will be admitted, but not in associations. This outing is to be the first picnic of the year of the American Society of Colonial Families and is the first venture of its kind.

VOTE SUNDAY ON STREET CAR STRIKE

Haverhill, July 22—The employes of the Haverhill, Amesbury & Newburyport Street Railway, comprising locals of the Amalgamated Employes, will take a vote Sunday on whether or not they will strike to enforce their demands that one of their number, Motorman Sullivan, be reinstated in the service, and that the division superintendent, John H. Matthews, be removed.

Bailey, it is said, was discharged for an alleged infraction of company rules in running over a railroad crossing without first stopping.

Cleopatra Lays Her First Egg at the Zoo

Cleopatra has laid a five and a half-inch egg.

Cleopatra is the big lady ostrich at the Franklin Park Zoo. It is her first egg, according to the attendants, and it is some egg, for it weighs more than four pounds, and if it was scrambled for dinner it would make a good meal for four, and it also might break up a good sized show all by itself if buried by some rough customer.

It is the first time in Boston that an ostrich has laid an egg, but the zoo attendants say that Cleo—they call her that for short—will furnish eleven more, to make up a dozen.

We Might Try an Humble Appeal to Our Masters' Gratitude

THIS week the British government has taken occasion to emphasize again its contempt of American rights and its perfect confidence that our government will do nothing to defend American rights against British aggression.

An order has been issued forbidding British subjects to trade with specified American firms, to the number of eighty-five, which are not favorably regarded by the British Board of Trade.

And a specific order has been issued forbidding the American Red Cross to send hospital supplies for the use of the sick and wounded to Germany or Austria.

These two orders are in direct contravention of the recognized law of nations, of the provisions of The Hague conferences and the Declaration of London, and of the positive and reiterated declarations of international law made by the British government in former years, in the course of negotiations with Germany, France, Russia and Japan.

These orders are also made in contemptuous disregard of the rights and the dignity of the United States as a sovereign power.

At the same time that these fresh insults are given to us the seizure and retention of American mails continues to be a daily occurrence, though it has been weeks and months since Mr. Lansing informed the British government that the United States would no longer tolerate such treatment of its mails.

We have not expected and do not now expect our government to do anything to protect either the rights of American citizens or the dignity of the nation against English insults and injuries.

But it does seem to us that a sense of gratitude for recent favors ought to restrain the English government from thus slapping us in the face and thus scorning our rights, our sovereignty and our flag.

The British people owe it to our interference, and to our interference alone, that they now have enough to eat; that they are not in the grip of famine.

If we had kept ourselves out of the war, if we had not cared how many British ships were sunk by German submarines, if we had not been the active ally of England on the sea, the people of England would be in a state of starvation by this time.

Anyone who remembers the deadly havoc the German submarines were playing with British commerce when we interfered with a threat of war after the sinking of the Sussex can easily figure how long the food supply of England would have held out but for our successful threat of war on England's behalf, made under the guise of concern for the lives of American passengers on board British ships.

We say "made under the guise of concern for the lives of American citizens," because the deliberate abandonment of American citizens to the cruelties of Mexican torturers and murderers is a thousand-fold proof that our present government has no real concern for American lives when neither political gain nor partisan prejudice is to be served by pretending concern.

So we hold that the British government ought to be more considerate in its treatment of our ships, our commerce, our mails, our citizens' rights and our national self-respect simply as a matter of gratitude for our efficient services in stopping the German submarine destruction of British commerce.

It seems to us that under the circumstances the London government ought not to kick us more than once a week at most, and ought to be satisfied to spit in our face, say, once a month.

Our august masters in Downing street are really too harsh, at times, we think. Of course, we would not be treasonable enough to propose that our own government should openly rebel against our English rulers, or actually defend American ships and American rights and American mails with arms, or use any unbecoming or disrespectful terms of remonstrance.

But, at least, the administration might resort to respectful supplications and humble representations. It might call the attention of the British Lords of the Admiralty to the fact that in spite of anything the British navy could do to prevent them the German submarines, less than ninety days ago, were sinking merchant ships bound to England with food and supplies at the rate of 200,000 tons a week, so that marine insurance was raised to the prohibitive rate of 100 per cent.

Our government might timidly but urgently recall the fact that this submarine war ceased not because of anything the British navy could do—for it was absolutely helpless to protect British merchantmen—but because Mr. Wilson threatened Germany with the participation of the United States in the war as one of the allies unless the destruction of British merchant vessels, with the inevitable starvation of the English people, came to an end.

And then, we think, our government might reasonably present a respectful and properly humble request that our own American ships be permitted to voyage on the same seas made safe by us for British ships.

Of course, our masters might refuse even this humble request, and then there would be nothing for our government to do but to submit, in accordance with its regular and well-established policy. But, still, it would do no harm to try.

Even if our august masters in London became peevish over our government's humble petitions and supplications, we cannot guess what more they could do to us as a rebuke than they have done and are doing.

When alien masters forbid a subject nation to trade with other nations, seize its ships, detain its citizens, rob its private and public mails, put their own inspectors in the subject ports to decide what cargoes can be shipped or not, take the subject nation's citizens from neutral ships on the high seas, refuse to permit the subject nation's citizens to minister to the sick and wounded or to send clothing, food and medicines to starving millions, and compel the government and the people of the subject nation to eat dirt, to submit to insult and to get out of and to stay out of the highways and markets of the neutral world's commerce and trade, what other extremity of insult, scorn, contempt and injury is there left, in God's name, to be heaped upon the poor, spineless, cringing nation that has smilingly submitted to all that bitterness of humiliation?

We feel sure that our government can approach the British government with an humble appeal to its sense of gratitude without the least fear of being either spit upon or kicked in the face a bit oftener than it has been and will be under the present admirable understanding existing between Downing Street and Washington.

To that entente cordiale it would be difficult to imagine any addition of insult on one part and shameful submission on the other part which has not already been exhibited, to the dishonor and disgrace of the American name and the bitter anger and shame of every man and woman who is fit to wear the badge of citizenship in this republic our brave and upstanding fathers once made so self-respecting, so glorious and so renowned in the earth.

A Ballad to Spenders

By William F. Kirk

THAT'S right—don't hang onto your money
As though it were dearer than life.
Get some of the milk and the honey
While here in this valley of strife.
But while you have got it in motion
Give some little urchin a whirl;
You could hand him a week at the ocean
For the price of one cab for one girl.

NO mortal is fond of a miser—
Your money was made to bring joy
In spite of the dear old adviser
Who says, "Save your pennies, my boy."
Don't pull in your horns—be a hummer!
But wouldn't it be mighty fine
To pay someone's rent for the Summer
And cut out one night of the wine?

GOOD times? You'd be foolish to miss them,
For some day you're going to die
And dollars don't ask you to kiss them
Except when you kiss them good-by.
You needn't be Sunday school scholars,
But here's the best bet you can make:
You'll get one grand run for the dollars
You spend for humanity's sake.

Thoughts by the Way

Did you ever want to borrow a little money to tide yourself and family over an embarrassing situation?

Perhaps you got wise to a business opportunity which would yield generous returns if you only had a bit of ready money, to swing it.

And you didn't have a cent.

But suppose you had happened to mention the fact to a fellow workman who lived in a narrow little street, in a cheap, tawdry row of houses, that you and your wife scorned when you were house hunting, and found that your friend you called a "cheap skate" not only had saved the money, but would lend you what you wanted.

How would you have felt, anyway, to find that that "cheap John" and his dowdy little wife could "buy and sell" you and your family of high notions?

Better cut your eye teeth. Get out of the spendthrift class.

Inklings and Thinklings

In the political Zoo:

The Fight for Irish Freedom, the Regimental Cat, the Triangle Again and the Prize Baby

Not to Mention Scanty Bathing Suits, the Boy Who Learned Boxing to Whip a Bully, and the Heiress Who Bought Some New Boots, All in Tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN.

Boston has been a Mecca for Irish men and women all this week. More than twenty thousand have come here while the Ancient Order of Hibernians and the Ladies' Auxiliary of that order have been in session here.

Therefore, more than usual interest will attach to a remarkable article which will appear in tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN; an article which will thrill every Irish heart with pride in his native land—the "ould sod"—and that will inspire men and women everywhere who fight for freedom and believe in freedom as the Irish do.

Patrick Egan was the first treasurer of the Irish National Land League. He served as the United States Minister to Chili. Since before Parnell's time he has been an active worker for Ireland.

No other man has been more closely in touch with the fight for Irish freedom than he; no other man is any better fitted to tell that stirring story. The fight is not yet won, but victory seems not impossible now.

Mr. Egan's story of the fight for Irish freedom will be the most stirring article printed in any Boston Sunday paper; and it will appear exclusively in tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN.

A certain young lady, heir to a considerable fortune, bought a pair a high boots.

The young lady had, before that time, moved into the staid old town of Hyannis, down on the Capé, and set the town awhirl.

The matter of the high boots—and other things—came to light in a hearing at Hartford, Ct., where the young lady, Miss Marion Pomeroy Smith, fought the attempt of Charles C. Paine, conservator of her Massachusetts property, to be appointed conservator in Connecticut. She won her fight there.

On the other hand, it was charged Miss Smith had set certain Hyannis heads, heads of married men, awhirl.

Tomorrow Sunday's AMERICAN will have an unusual article on this interesting case, which will tell many matters not heretofore made public.

The lady with the high boots would meet no opposition from the Swampscott police. What they object to is young ladies in scant bathing suits who walk through the Swampscott streets with no stockings on.

The Sunday editor sent a camera man to Swampscott to see and photograph what he saw. The result of his camera's activities, together with what some of the pretty Swampscott girls think of the Swampscott police, will appear in the Sunday AMERICAN tomorrow.

Sometimes a real cat story comes to light; and when it does it is worth reading. Everybody either likes cats or dislikes them. Nobody is neutral. Most people are for the cats.

There was a body of militiamen, and they had a cat; but they could not take the cat along to Mexico—perhaps for fear of the Mexican hairless dog.

So they left the cat at home when they went to the border, and they left word, "Please take care of the cat."

But nobody did, the cat was lost, a whole city sought her, she was found with a broken leg—and now a first-class veterinary is setting the broken leg, and it is to be hoped the cat will live happily ever after. All of which is duly set forth in the Sunday AMERICAN.

Incidentally, the boys are on the border, and they have been targets for Mexican bullets, and have sent bullets back across the line.

Whatever happens to them between now and midnight tonight you will find it in the Sunday AMERICAN from Bert Ford and Willard Davis and the other Boston AMERICAN men on the border.

A well-known Boston woman, a society woman, found her son was suffering from the attentions of that exuberantly healthy youth known as a bully.

She might have complained to the police, or to the school authorities. But she was wiser.

She engaged a professional pugilist to teach her son to box—and at last reports the bully had been soundly thrashed, and his disposition is much improved.

The story is in the Sunday AMERICAN.

The triangle again! A young woman dead; a fashionable physician wounded and desperately near death; another physician held for the shooting.

Every element of drama is present; the police are alive, but the many mysteries in the case are still puzzling them.

The latest developments in the Harris-Adams-Atwood triangle will be found in the Sunday AMERICAN.

The baby championship of New England has been decided. A sealed verdict was returned by four physician-judges after careful examination of Harold Benedict McDonald of Cambridge and Vernon Soucia of Caribou, Me. The verdict will be in the Sunday AMERICAN.

The obstacles that bar the way to a marriage between Mrs. William B. Leeds, one of America's richest widows, and Prince Christophoros of Greece; the means which science takes to remedy physical defects consequent upon infantile paralysis; the absorbing arguments, pro and con, on the question: "Was Hetty Green a Miser?" The story, Margaret A. Benson's own story of her shameful mistreatment by Zapata, most wolf-like of Mexican bandits; the first of a series of "Beauty Secrets of a Princess" (Princess Fernanda Riabouschinski, a perfect type of Italian loveliness); and the latest notions as to "Modesty Hats" and "Ear Nets" by Lady Duff-Gordon—

All are fully set forth in tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN.
